Many changes have come in the form and attachments of the bicycle since it jumped so suddenly into popularity a few years ago. It has dropped from high to low, and pneumatic tires are well on the way toward forcing the smaller "solid rubbers" to take a back seat. The latest novelty is an attachment invented by T. E. McKenna, of Newark, N. J., which enables a father or big brother to take the little fellow of the family with him on his spins. It consists of saddle, chain and pedals, which can be easily fastened in front of the main rider on any diamond framed machine, and which not only allows the small boy to ride, but lets him do his share toward propelling the bicycle.

The small rider has all the privileges of his big companion. He can coast or he can pedal, as he pleases, and a single motion of lever convenient to his hand will ungear the attachment and let his pedals hang quiet. Most of the balancing is done by the adult, and the child is in no danger of falling.

Mr. McKenna's 3½-year old son Lec. after whom the invention has been nemed, rode 900 miles with his father last summer, sometimes keeping his saddle for as much as forty miles at a time. Lec is the smallest bicycle rider in the world probably.

The Second Picnic.

Annual Outing of the Retail Grocers' Association.

An Immense Crowd Enjoys It at Queen's Park.

A Grand Success - The Procession-The Athletic Programme, Winners and Events—The Commit-tees—Notes.

Anyone desiring pienic pointers should apply to the retail grocers of London.

It was only their second annual outing, but it couldn't have been better or bigger if they had had a hundred years' experience at the pienic business.

The enterprise of the grocers in getting up such a splendid affair in this hot weather was as commendable as the result of their effort was successful. Such a crowd as assembled at Queen's Park yesterday has not been seen since the Western Fair. People went out not by hundreds but by thousands. To have looked at the central part of the city in the afternoon one would have thought it was a general holiday, and that nearly everybedy had "gone out of town." All the grocers stores were closed and business was almost suspended.

The PROCESSION.

The opening number on the day's programme was the procession, which left the Market Square at 10 a.m. First came the Seventh Band on foot; next the members of the Retail Grocers' Association in hacks, and then the decorated grocers wagons. The latter feature was brilliant. Between 50 and 75 vehicles were in line, and 'each grocer had entered his display the" section of the G. T. R., wrote his regrets at not being able to be present.

The grand stand receipts will amount to onsiderable.

A mmber of brethren from Toronto, Hamilton and other places were present. The seventh Band rendered selections during the afternoon very acceptably.

G. Hector Clemes, representing Enoch Morgan, Sons & Co., of New York, maker of "sapolio," was in the procession.

The gris' race brought out a multitude of sweet young contestants.

In the one-mile bicycle race R. Gauld and W. Reid collided.

The trotting was splendid, Mr. Shuttle-worth's Shanghai Charlie and Mr. Annett's Bill McKinley, making a close and exciting run. Mr. Thomas Sergeant entered his worth's Shanghai Charlie and Mr. Annett's Bill McKinley, making a close and exciting run. Mr. Thomas Sergeant entered his favorite animal 'just for fun,'' as he put it. The spectators go lots of fun out of it.

filled up. Viewed from the track the array of humanity thus seated presented an attractive and imposing appearance. The ladies turned out in force, and their bright summer attreamed the flutter of hundreds of fans combined to make a charming effect. The attendance can hardly be accurately estimated. It probably ranged from 4,500 to 6,000 judged by a glance, with chances in favor of the latter figure.

Thanks to the generosity of contributors and the determination of the grocers to spare no expense in making the programme a success, the prizes offered in the various events were all valuable and well-worthy striving after. This brought out plenty of competition and keen sport. The management cannot be too heartily praised. The fact that no less than 30 numbers were lustled through by 6 o'clock speaks for itself. As little delay as possible was caused. The interest of the spectators was not allowed to flag, and they remained until the last. J. L. Fitzgerald, pistol in hand, acted as starter. Thos. A. Browne, Thos. Gillean and F. Saunders stationed themselves in front of the grand stand and kept track of the victors. J. W. Jones and W. T. Vanston were the referees, and J. The egg and spoon race was an amusing thing. The trick consists in carrying an egg safely on a spoon held in the mouth.

The dancers performed on the platform north of the judges' stand to the music of a fiddle. They were heartly applauded. The weather treated the grocers hand-somely. It was intensely warm in the fore part of the day, but became cooler in the attention.
