known as "The Victoria," It is not as some may have supposed, a building in which every resident has access to his neighbor's home. Each apartment is a private residence, with every modern improvement. Each residence is composed of a drawingroom, three bedrooms, one of which can be converted into a den; a complete bathroom and a well-lighted pantry and kitchen. Every room has outside light, as well as gas and electric

The staircase, which is of oak, is fireproof, while the doors off the corridors are covered with sheet oxidized copper, it having been supplied by the A. B. Ormsby Company, of Toronto. The staircases, halls and basement are lighted at the expense of Messrs Hayman.

The occupant of each apartment is given the privilege of selecting his own wall decorations, which are also supplied by the owners. The entire building, with the exception of the kitchen and bathrooms, are finished in oak. while the kitchen is finished in southern pine, and the baths in marble and enamel. The floors are all hardwood, polished and waxed. A dumb-waiter leads from the first floor to all kitchens, and by means of it all goods are delivered. No goods
