MISS IRENE LOVE.

MISS LOVE GIVEN GREAT RECEPTION

Success at Bennett's Vaudeville Theater Continues at Each Performance.

Miss Irene Love, who made so favorable an impression at Bennett's, continues to receive the sincere tributes of her many admirers on her continued success. Last night her singing created great enthusiasm. There was a very large audience present, and Miss Love was given an ovation. Her singing is improving at every performance.

She will be on the bill today and all the rest of the week. The house is playing to big business.

The act, "Vaudeville Privileges," given by Gardner and Stoddard, continues to send the audiences into spasms of laughter. This is one of the funniest acts seen in Bennett's for many days, and is a real clever act in conception and execution. Mr. Gardner and Miss Stoddard will soon leave vaudeville to begin a starring tour. A musical comedy will be the vehicle, and it is predicted that they will make a splendid success. They will begin rehearsals in Cleveland in a week or two. Mr. Gardner has canceled twenty weeks of vaudeville to accept the role.

For Factory Inspectors.

Toronto Telegram: Labor men, but not union men, are the kind the Employers' Association would like to see appointed to the much-discussed positions of factory inspectors. J. P. Murray, president of the Association, said this morning he had a copy of a letter which waited on Hon. Nelson Montet to press the views of the Employers' Association. They declared themselves opposed to the appointment of union members, but said they did not object to labor men, who were not union members. They also asked that female inspectors inspect factories where women were employed. This is already done to a certain extent. Hon. Mr. Montet has now had the benefit of the views of the manufacturers, the union men, and the employers on this vital question. It is likely that the appointment of the four new inspectors will be announced soon.

Principal Waller on Huron College

Rev. Principal Waller, of Huron College, takes strong exception to a writer in the "Canadian Churchman," who intimates that the progress of the Diocese of Huron has not been commensurate with its opportunities. Principal Waller has written to the Churchman as follows:

Sir,—Your plain talk on the Huron jubilee strikes a note of progress, and in hope, bear fruit. The college will, I hope, bear fruit. The college was founded in 1863, and has six years before completing its jubilee, but we cannot afford to lose the present opportunity. The number of students now attending lectures in theology is 26, while several others who are enrolled are prevented for a time from continuing their studies. If the average entry of the past two years is maintained the numbers will very materially be increased. Hand in hand with the growing numbers should go increased efficiency in staff and equipment. Efficient theological colleges are the very life assurance societies of the church. With the exception of two small legacies, no material increase has been made to the endowed funds of the college for many years past. The training which men receive is as good as can be given with the means at our disposal; but we need two more professors giving their whole time to the work; a suitable chapel, permanent provision for the increase of the library and a gymnasium. Our present income is derived from fees from students, some small endowments and an annual collection, more or less irregularly taken up in the diocese. The last item is very apt to be squeezed out by the urgent appeals for the missionary funds of the church and local objects, and is at best an uncertain and fluctuating source of revenue. An increased endowment of $50,000 is badly needed at once. Plans are being laid for an appeal, to be spread over five years, for the increase of endowment, as well as a more thorough gathering of the annual collection. But men come forward with donations of $5,000 apiece, ten churches with more than $1,000 apiece, and a hundred more with donations of $100 each to enable us to meet our present needs? Testimony is not wanting that Huron College is supplying the office of the valuable it contained and taking the operator's watch and ten dollars got away in safety. Not until seven o'clock in the morning was the affair discovered and the operator at that time was still unconscious. As soon as he was revived he said that about one o'clock he had been asked to open the door. He refused, and immediately two shots were fired which broke the lights and in a few moments two men smashed the window and attacked him. After receiving heavy blows on the head he became unconscious. He was able to give a fairly accurate description of the men, and it is believed that they are the fellows who have successfully robbed the operators at Ridgeway, Thamesville and Woodstock.

SHOT OUT LIGHTS

BEAT OPERATOR

A Dawing Hold-Up of the Canadian Pacific Agent at Milton.

(Special to The Advertiser.)

Milton, Oct. 30.—One of the most daring robberies that has ever taken place in this vicinity was perpetrated at the C. P. R. depot here early this morning, when the C. P. R. operator was beaten senseless by two masked men, who, after rilling the office of all the valuables it contained and taking the operator's watch and ten dollars got away in safety. Not until seven o'clock in the morning was the affair discovered and the operator at that time was still unconscious. As soon as he was revived he said that about one o'clock he had been asked to open the door. He refused, and immediately two shots were fired which broke the lights and in a few moments two men smashed the window and attacked him. After receiving heavy blows on the head he became unconscious. He was able to give a fairly accurate description of the men, and it is believed that they are the fellows who have successfully robbed the operators at Ridgeway, Thamesville and Woodstock.

Another Account.

Milton, Oct. 30.—As Night Operator Cooper was busily engaged at his desk at the C. P. R. depot at 1:30 this morning, a large stone crashed through the window which he was facing, struck him on the chin, and felled him to the floor unconscious.

The next thing he remembered was two men, masked and muffled, busily engaged in lashing his hands, arms and feet, so that he could not move. The oil lamp was out, and the dim light of a lantern was all there was to see by.

"Better keep quiet," said one of the men. "We've got a pal outside, who'll shoot through that window if you say a word."

After this admonition, the two searched the operator, taking his watch, ring, keys, and some of the silver. Then they went to the till, where they got $10 and some more silver. Their plundering done, they disappeared.

Cooper lay kicking and struggling nearly two hours before he got his feet loose. Then he ran to the house of the agent, H. E. Parker, who lives nearby, and got his hands untied.

The men had gone, but a search showed that they entered by a rear window after stunning the operator, and unlocked the doors.

This morning three suspicious-looking men were seen about 9 o'clock waiting for the train to Toronto.

MADILL WILL UPHOLD

[Special to The Advertiser.]

THE WHITE MAN'S FORERUNNERS.

All the honey bees in this country having originally been imported from Europe or Asia, there is no racial difference between the wild ones and the domesticated, those that live in trees are simply the descendants of those that from time to time have taken "honey leave" from their owners' hives and reverted to a state of nature. The vast bulk of the wild bees are of the German or black race, while the standard domesticated bee is the Italian; but that, however, is only because the Germans were the first to be introduced here. Just when the Germans came is in doubt, but it was sometime in the seventeenth century; certainly it was not until near the close of the eighteenth century that any bees were found west of the Mississippi.

The Indians used to say they could mark the advance of the white man by the appearance of bees in the woods. The Italian bees were first imported in 1880. Better tempered and more industrious than the German bees, but as many still keep the German bee, and others have the hybrid formed by the crossing of the two races, while countless Italians now have taken to the woods, there to breed more hybrids, it is clear there is no sure way of distinguishing between the wild bee and the domesticated. —From "Hunting the Wild Honey Bee," by David Almon, in Outlook.

THE GREATEST MASTODON.

For the sum of $20,000 J. Pierpont Morgan has purchased the famous Warren mastodon skeleton, the most complete and finest specimen of its kind in the world, and has presented it to the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.

This rich fossil prize is of extraordinary interest. It was discovered near Newburg, N. Y., though dug up more than fifty years ago—yet during all this time it has remained practically in seclusion, hidden away from the knowledge and inspection of the general public; but now, thanks to the donor and the reconstructive efforts of the distinguished paleontologist, Prof. Henry F. Osborn, the world at large is able to study and view it.

The skeleton measures fourteen feet eleven inches from base of tusk to tail, and nine feet two inches in height. The tusks are eight feet seven inches long. The tips still retain the beautiful polish given them during their long use. One especially interesting feature is the fact that the layer beneath the outer shell of the ivory presents a series of rings which resemble growth rings, and appear to indicate that this
