

FIRE DEPARTMENT PROBE DELAYED ANOTHER WEEK

No Need to Replace Fire Chief Aitken, Ald. Douglass Declares.

A SERIOUS MATTER

The fire department inquiry will not be continued for another week, according to Ald. Leonard Douglass, chairman of the finance committee, who also gives as his opinion that, from his consideration of the British report to date, there will be no need to replace Fire Chief John Aitken, as evidently demanded time and again by Mayor George Wenige.

"As far as we have gone with the report I see no reason why there should be any change of personnel in the fire department, the chief or any other member," Chairman Douglass stated.

"This British report is a serious matter for the council's consideration," he warned, "and not to be treated as more or less of a joke report, as is the mayor's idea of it, from his general attitude at last night's session."

The chairman is not prepared, however, at this juncture to give any decided opinion respecting the recommendation from Dr. Brittain and his experts that the firemen's union be disbanded. This will be a question for deep thought, Ald. Douglass stated.

On the other hand, Ald. Gordon Drake is emphatic in his declaration that he will oppose any such move, predicting a merry war in the council if the recommendation is regarded at all seriously.

Ald. Drake warns his colleagues not to be "foolish" and attempt to upset the union.

DRAYTON SAYS BANK REPORT DID NOT SUIT

of advances by the Home Bank to H. J. Daly, its president.

"Did you know he had got into the bank to the extent of millions?" asked Mr. Lee.

Shocked To Hear It.

"I was very shocked to hear it," replied the former minister.

When Mr. Lee asked if he thought that the bank should have been allowed to continue taking deposits and opening branches when its condition was unsound, he replied that the bank required deposits if it was to continue in business. It was a question whether the bank should be required to go to the wall or try to better its position.

After the examination of Sir Henry, the commission adjourned to meet on Tuesday morning next, in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto. Before adjournment, it was made clear by Commissioner McKewen that the main part of the inquiry would be place in Ottawa. As counsel for the depositors wished to examine Liquidator Clarkson and as it was necessary to refer to the books of the bank which were in the custody of the court, there would be an adjournment to Toronto, however.

Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance in the Meighen government, appeared before the royal commission investigating the Home Bank this morning. He was examined by W. T. Lee, counsel for the Home Bank. He said he had first given some attention to Home Bank affairs in January, 1920, his attention being drawn to the file by Sir Thomas White. On the 17th of March, 1920, he had written to Mr. Roberts, then secretary to Sir Henry Drayton, asking him to put the matter before Sir Henry. This was done. On January 2, said Sir Henry, he wrote to Z. A. Lash, counsel for the Home Bank, asking for information regarding the three loans in regard to which complaint had been made. These were the Prudential Trust loan, that to Pellatt and Pellatt and the advance to the A. C. Frost Company.

He had received a reply from Mr. Lash, son of Z. A. Lash, saying that his father was ill and unable to attend to business, but that the condition of the three accounts and that of the bank generally had much improved.

Wrote To Sir Thomas White.

Sir Henry wrote to Sir Thomas White in April, 1921, stating that the board of the Home Bank had accepted the securities of the Prudential Trust Company were sufficient. He asked for Sir Thomas' views on the subject. Sir Thomas replied that he might be advisable to summon the president to Ottawa to review the position of the bank, particularly in regard to British Columbia timber limits. Sir Thomas believed it was advisable "to keep in continuous touch with the bank."

On April 25, 1921, he had received another letter from Mr. Lash, regarding the condition of the bank. Also he saw H. J. Daly, president of the bank, at intervals.

Mr. Lee: "When did you see him?"

Sir Henry: "Oh, I'm not sure. I don't keep a diary."

Mr. Lee said that he supposed that Sir Henry did not keep a diary, but he might have an idea of the date.

Sir Henry replied that he had seen Daly a number of times. He had made it his business to get as much information as possible—not only from Mr. Daly, but from other bankers, in regard to the Home Bank. The Home Bank was not regarded as being in a good condition, but Mr. Daly always took the ground that it was improving. Mr. Daly came to Ottawa in 1921 and submitted a statement which showed an improvement.

Watching Two Banks.

Mr. Lee—Were you satisfied with it?

Sir Henry—I was never satisfied, but I felt I had got all I could. It wasn't a question of being satisfied. It was a question of what you could get done. There were two banks which we were watching at the time, La Banque Nationale and the Home Bank.

The statement covering the Pellatt accounts, said Sir Henry, showed a reduction from Nov. 31, 1919, to May 31, 1921, of $470,977. That reduction, according to the statement, was due to payments amounting to $514,033.

CHARMING MOVIE ACTRESS IS LOOKING FOR A HUSBAND

Margery Wilson Even Hints a Canadian "He-Man" Has the Best Chance.

A CELEBRATED STAR

Is Appearing in Person at the Showing of "Insinuation" at the Grand.

Gather 'round, boys; here's an earful!

Margery Wilson has come to town. She is a dainty, delectable and altogether charming movie actress. At least, that was the impression she gave her interviewer. And she is one of the best-known celebrities of the silver screen, the youngest producer in the world, and a cultured and eminently attractive girl.

But the vitally interesting part about Miss Wilson is that she wants a husband. A real he-man of a husband. This afternoon and this evening she appears in person at the Grand Theatre in connection with her film "Insinuation." So all eligible young men will have a chance to see her.

It is doubtful, however, if very many young men in London will meet her. To begin with, she must be able to "dominate" Miss Wilson. That's the term she used. Dominating Miss Wilson, it should be observed, is no easy job. She already dominates about seventy people herself as president and general manager of her own incorporated company.

Miss Wilson is the little girl who played "Brown-eyes" in "Intolerance." She has been featured opposite Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Ray and William S. Hart in a score of other roles. Now she is an actor-producer, and is said to be making piles of money. Yet if she gets the right man she is quite willing to live on his salary even if it is only $15 a week.

"I prospective husband will not want to live on any of my money," she told The Advertiser, "because I would not think of marrying that kind of a man."

Miss Wilson likes Canadian men better than the American variety. She even went so far as to intimate that a Canadian will stand a better chance than any other in carrying her affection.

The star of "Insinuation" bears a striking resemblance to Mae Marsh. She is much better looking, but she has the attractive Mae Marsh way of smiling. She is a successful scenario writer, having written the story and continuity of "Insinuation" herself.

Miss Wilson is a Kentuckian, and is favored with all the physical and mental attributes commonly ascribed to the elite of the Union's favorite state. Owing to a crash in her family fortunes she and her sister were sent to the boarding school training girls' boarding school training. She went to the concert stage, then the stage, and finally joined the rank and file at Hollywood.

"This was eight years ago," she said, "and I was a very successful actress. I was in D. W. Griffith's 'Intolerance' and she has played opposite many noted male stars. Now she intends to remain here as a producer, director and scenario writer."

Miss Wilson thinks the public owes a debt of gratitude to Douglas Fairbanks. He has done more for the movie industry than any other man, she claims.

Lauds Fairbanks.

"Mr. Fairbanks' activity and industry while making a picture is wonderful," she said. "His enthusiasm is contagious, and all his ideas are constructive. The energy, which is his predominant characteristic, is not just a silly expenditure of effort."

Miss Wilson's first appearance in the movies was with Charles Ray in "The Outcast." In this she was asked to do a Spanish dance. She did not know the first thing about Spanish dancing, but she tried to miss the opportunity. Curiously enough, her attempt proved quite satisfactory, and she was later given a more important and larger part.

It is seldom that a girl meets such a delightful conversationalist as Miss Wilson. She is polished and refined, and, what is more interesting, is looking for a husband.

On arriving here, Mayor Wenige greeted her, and volunteered to introduce her to the audience when she appears before them at the Grand Opera House this evening.

YOUTFUL COWBOY READY FOR REHEARSAL

Bob DeForest the 12-year-old rope twister and lariat thrower of Texas was present this afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. circus rehearsal. The young cowboy threw some of his cowboy lasso throwing stunts that will prove a great attraction to the youthful Londoners who will see him in action on circus night.

Bob probably be here until the summer and will then go to the great Calgary stampede to take part in the big cowboy features that are to be held there. At present he is going to school in London.

less additional advances of $499,872. The list of securities submitted was dated May 3, 1921, and had a nominal value of $3,533,291.

Answering Mr. Lee, Sir Henry stated that the securities were gone over. A great part of them were for real estate round the city of Toronto. The bank was always insisted that if the bank were at all in a doubtful state, it would liquidate this debt by the sale of real estate. There had never been an independent valuation of the securities by the department.

Collateral Did Not Suit.

"The collateral did not suit me at all," said Sir Henry.

Mr. Lee—Were you suspicious of the statements?

Sir Henry—No, but I couldn't see daylight.

Mr. Lee—You mean that you thought the bank couldn't get on?

Sir Henry—No, but I thought the bank was always insisting that it was in a good condition, but Mr. Daly always took the ground that it was improving. Mr. Daly came to Ottawa in 1921 and submitted a statement which showed an improvement.

Dr. Traprock On Snakes.

Dr. Walter E. Traprock, the noted traveler, was speaking of snakes, of which he has probably seen as many as any living man.

"The revolution felt by most people in the presence of snakes," said the doctor, "is wrong. The snakes are mainly harmless and useful. One of the gentlest companions I ever had was Naa-Naa, the pet cobra or hot water bottle snake which I brought back from the Filbert Islands."

"The Ooka derives its name from its curious ability to retain heat for an indefinite period. It lives on the fume of the cocoon. I know of. The Ooka absorbs its meal during the tropic noon hour, which at that time is at its highest temperature of about 110 degrees. This meal the snake retains until the following day, when the process is repeated. It is very pleasant, during the cool nights, to have one of these creatures wrapped about one's body."

"A less attractive but equally useful serpent is the great Desert Python, which plows its way through the sands of the Sahara. This creature is the terror of all the small animals of the desert. The natives, however, prize them highly, using the smaller ones as ties for their primitive automobiles."

"It was my good fortune to capture the record snake last September, a giant measuring 82 feet from tip to tip. I had him reamed out by forcing a sharp egg-beater through his entire length, after which I presented him to the Iktus Hook and Ladder Company, No. 3, who, up to that time, had no hose whatever. They were so pleased that they made me an honorary life member with the grade of Bushwa, or chief. When ever there is a fire in the Sahara I am allowed to go inside the lines."

BRITISH PREPARE FOR THE OPENING OF WEMBLEY 'EX.'

Duke of Devonshire Guarantees $2,000,000 Towards Financing of Big Fair.

KING TO BE THERE

Associated Press Despatch.

London, April 17.—Visiting Wembley yesterday after a month's interval brought strong convictions, certain directions. Firstly, the British workingman, when he is minded to get a move on, can do things handsomely. Removal of the ban on overtime has effected wonders and really efficient hustle is visible everywhere. Nevertheless, it would be sheer exaggeration to assert that everything will be complete for the opening of the Empire Exhibition on Wednesday next.

The earliest comers, however, will have plenty to absorb their attention. Probably there will have been exhibits in the fairgrounds, but it is doubtful if any others have been so crammed with infinite wonder and variety. The palaces of engineering and industrial products alone could occupy enthusiasts the whole time the exhibition will be on. To have on only one detail—Canadians, who can only be forgiven for imagining that England's railways are only toy affairs, will probably be astonished when they see the latest English super-locomotive nearly as big as those of the Canadian trans-continental services. Hard by is George Stephenson's "puffing Billy," the first English locomotive ever constructed.

Duke a Daily Visitor.

The Canadian, Australian and South African shows are all complete, likewise the comparatively smaller shows provided by the Gold Coast and Burma.

The Duke of Devonshire, who has personally guaranteed $2,000,000 towards financing the exhibition, is an almost daily visitor, and today was seen snatching a cup of tea alone in the middle of an exhausted afternoon.

On Wednesday next their majesties will motor from Windsor and on arrival at the exhibition with their suite will enter state carriages sent from Buckingham Palace. Prior to the arrival of the royal couple, the prime minister will go to the stadium to music played by massed bands of the Guards. A fanfare from the Household Cavalry will announce their majesties' arrival.

Will Remove Beer Ads.

The Prince of Wales, as president of the exhibition, with Premier Ramsay MacDonald and cabinet, will receive their majesties. The prince will read an address of welcome, and the king will reply. The bishop of London, Dr. Inge, will offer a prayer, and then the king will declare the British Empire Exhibition open, while the Union Jack and Dominion flags are unfurled at the masthead.

The seat to be occupied by the king at the exhibition is made of Douglas fir from Canada.

At present huge advertisements surmount the stadium, mostly beer advertisements, but these will be removed before next Wednesday.

HOLIDAY HIKE ARE PLANNED BY Y. M. C. A.

Bicycle Trip and Paper Chase Other Features for Easter Season.

School boys are going to take to hiking during the Easter holidays. The Y. M. C. A. has made many changes in its daily programs to make preparations for several trips that youthful Londoners will make into the suburbs.

During the holidays the regular afternoon classes will be conducted in the mornings, but the evening classes will remain unchanged. Tuesday afternoon there will be a route for junior school boys. The club has not yet planned yet and the weather will play quite a part in the direction of the youngsters taking part.

On Wednesday the night juniors will have their hike and on Thursday there will be a bicycle hike. The course taken will likely be south toward St. Thomas if the weather and roads permit.

A paper chase has been arranged for Friday and a combined hike and Treasurer Hunt is on the junior boys' program for the same day. Should any of the outdoor sports be cancelled the "Y" has arranged for indoor programs to replace them.

PEOPLE URGED TO FILE INCOME TAXES EARLY

The large volume of income tax returns that are pouring into the offices of the department by federal taxation is causing congestion there. The department advises that people file as quickly as possible and states that all letters asking for information should be answered as soon as possible. The department is not only slow in the work of the department, but is apt to result in inconvenience and disappointments for those who desire information regarding their returns.

OFFER FOR OLD REGISTRY BUILDING Will Not Be Renewed.

The public utilities commission will not again tender for the old Registry office on the corner of Talbot and Carling streets, the general manager announced today. The finance committee of the council last night decided to build a new building, and a chairman Douglas said that he had a bid from a man in the city and that he expected him to attend the meeting of the committee.

The offer of the public utilities commission was one of $10,000 in ten annual installments, which the general manager says is the full worth of the building and lot. The committee, however, thought that they would be getting no taxes from the property is the utilities owned it. They should have a new set of tenders. The committee has no other options on other just as suitable buildings and is not worrying in the least about the fate of the registry office.

POLICE OFFICIAL'S WORK FAVORABLE STATES WENIGE

Sees No Cause For Any Complaint Against Chief Birrell.

WILL NOT PROBE

The city police department is giving better service all the time, according to Mayor George Wenige, chairman of the police commission, who adds, however, that there is still some "little petty stuff" that could well be disposed of.

But there will be no need for any investigation of the department, the mayor stated, reporting that he has gone into the question very thoroughly and convinced himself that much criticism directed at Chief Robert Birrell has been unjustified, and has developed through a misunderstanding on the part of the public generally.

"There have been many things charged against the chief which should not have been," the mayor stated. "He has been giving special orders to certain sergeants and men to do this or that or make a special effort to obtain more O. R. offenders. I have looked carefully into these charges, however, and find that such is not the case."

"But there is a general steady improvement and the department is giving better service all the time and is receiving far more co-operation from the general public than ever before. There is a better understanding, I believe."

VETERAN FIREMEN RUN TRUE TO FORM

Capt. Mitchell and Lieut. Bolton Discover Blaze on Way Home.

Accustomed by long years of experience to the smell of smoke, two members of the fire department, Capt. Jack Mitchell and Lieut. George Bolton, both of the central fire hall, lived up to their reputation last night and probably prevented what might have developed into a dangerous fire.

Mitchell and Bolton were returning from a meeting when the odor of smoke came to their nostrils. Walking south on Clarence street, the men scoured the corner of King and Clarence when both remarked at the same time that they noted a fire. It did not take them long to discover that a small blaze was in progress at the rear of Lawson & Jones. Turned in an alarm immediately, the blaze, which started in a pile of rubbish, was quickly extinguished.

Suggestions For a Two-Story Building Submitted To Committee.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, April 16.—Architect Hutton of Toronto was in the city this morning, and had with him temporary plans for the new Masonic temple, planned to be built on the southeast corner of Hiawatha and Curtis streets at an estimated cost of around $50,000.

The building will be constructed of red pressed brick, two stories high, and is planned that an additional story can be added at any time. The first floor, which will be below the ground level about four feet, will contain an auditorium, which can be converted into a hall, and a furnace space. The second floor will take care of lodge rooms, club rooms and additional ante-rooms for the convenience of the members.

The complete plans have still to be placed on the table for the approval of the committee, but it is reported that no hitch will be experienced in getting ahead with the work this spring.

WORTH OF TEACHERS RECORDED ON SHEET

Inspectors Keep Novel Reports and Later Teachers Are Shown Them.

Among the interesting duties of the public school inspectors is that of making a detailed report on the general efficiency of all teachers in the schools. On a small sheet of paper, all ruled and spaced are marked the scores which the visiting inspectors, the opinion of the visiting inspectors, for such things as manner, voice, neatness of dress, deportment, sympathy with classes, discipline, overboard work, punctuality, attention to the penny bank, care of materials used in the school, economy of time, and interest and enthusiasm.

These reports are returned to the teachers so that they may to a certain extent see themselves as they appear in the eyes of the inspectors. On the back are such suggestions as are brought to be of use to the class and the teacher. An especially important point seems to be the response by
