

is this fatal notion. It substitutes the innocent for the guilty, although guilt and innocence cannot be transferred without the violation of all justice. How broadly does this system contrast with the simple, glorious and obvious doctrines of the New Testament! The atonement or at-one-ment is there described as a work of reconciliation, —as effecting an important and essential spiritual change in man, his motives, thoughts, words and works thence proceeding, but without implying any change whatever in the inimitable God-head."—E. Madeley.

"The Father, Son and Holy Spirit are the three essentials of one God which makes one, as the soul, the body and operation in man."—E. Swedenborg.
