—There is only one felt hat for every fifteen grown men in Japan. The calculation was made as follows: The total of adult men was put at 10,000,000, and the number of felt hats, imported or manufactured, was 700,000 approximately for the year 1900, and from these figures result the conclusion above mentioned. Since 1889, when the felt hat of the Western style was made by the Tokio hat factory for the first time in Japan, the manufacture of hats has been yearly increasing. By far the largest part of the imported hats is supplied by England.
