CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY OF IBBLAND .- At a meeting of the Faculty of Medicine, held on July 10th last, the following resolution was unanimously agreed to :—"That the Faculty of Medicine of the Catholic University of Ireland beg to tender their respectful sympathy to the French Jesuits and other religious orders: and at the same time to express their profound regret at the recent harsh and undeserved action of the French authorities towards bodies who have, in France and elsewhere, rendered such signal services to religion, learning, and Christian education."

DUNGANNON AND ITS MILITIA .- On 13th July, a special meeting of the Dungannon Town Commissioners was held to consider the refusal of the Local Government Board to allow the Dungannon Board of Guardians to give part of the workhouse for the use of the Mid-Ulster Artillery militia, during their annual training, a practice which has been allowed for the last nine years. It was stated that should the militia be removed from Dungannon through want of accommodation, it would be a loss of £5,000 to the town. It was resolved to memoralize the Lord Lieutenant to request the Local Government Board to allow the militia to be accommodated as usual in the workhouse.

A short distance from Dungannon, at the piace where the horse of the mail car was shot dead on Monday evening, while another car. with four passengers, was passing a woman named Jane Quinn, Roman Catholic, who was standing on Coalisland-road, was shot by a bullet from a revolver. Her hand and arm are severely injured. She accuses a man named Smith, who was to-day arrested. He was one of the passengers on the car. A magisterial inquiry was made in Dungannon. Evidence having been given, Smith was returned for trial to Omagh Assizes. At Ballinderry-bridge, county Londonderry, a large crowd assembled on Monday. Some disturbance took place, and a young man named Henry Lynn was shot through the breast. It is, however, thought the wound will not prove fatal. Ulster Examiner.

A meeting of Irishmen was held in the lowing motion was afterwards adopted:-"That while labouring energetically, in support of the programme of the Brish National Land League, we hereby declare our determination never to relax our efforts for the restoration of our native Parliament, without which no reform of any kind whatever can make our people happy, prosperous, and contented."-Glasgow Herald.

Dr. Begg on 12th July evening delivered a lecture in Edinburgh on the "Results of the Covenanting Struggle," in the course of which he argued that there could be no Established Church without uniformity of worship, and that every minister of the Established Church is doubly bound, both by Church and State, to observe the simple worship of Presbyterianism, otherwise he is guilty of double perjury, has forfeited all right to his stipend, and ought either to repent or be expelled. At the conclusion of his lecture, Dr. Begg submitted a new form of the Solemn League and Covenant which he thought might suit the condition of things at the present day.

Mr. Anderson has given private notice that, on Thursday next! he will ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has yet considered the report by Mr. Rothery, the Wreck Commissioner, as to the culpability of the engineer, contractors, and directors of the North British Railway Company for the Tay Bridge disaster, and whether any instructions have been given to the public prosecutors to take any action in respect to the great loss of life occasioned by it. The Select Committee which is to consider the new Tay Bridge Bill was nominated on Tuesday. The four members nominated by the House are-Mr. Pease, Mr. Jackson, Mr.

Rendel, and Sir William Palliser. The three members nominated by the Committee of Selection are—Sir Massey Lopes, Mr. Edward Stafford Howard, and Mr. Kynaston Cross. A letter from Capt. Wallace (a native of Ardrossan), of the barque Gitanilla (of Glasgow), from Demerara to London states that on the 3rd June, in lat. 25 56 N., long. 57 51 W., he fell in with a vessel, bottom up. The Gitanilla rounded to, close under the wreck, and the master sent a boat alongside with a lantern. The boat remained near the wreck about thirty five minutes, but could not make out any name. The after part of the vessel was about eight feet and the forward part about four feet out of the water. Sne was a wooden vessel with a copper bottom, the copper being good but not new. She had a flat floor and sharp ends. As well as could be made out in the darkness she was a vessel about 400 or 500 tons register. He rudder was gone, and her bottom appeared to be quite clean. There was no wreckage near her.

SUCCESS OF BELLEVILLE SEPARATE SCHOOL. To the Editor of the TRUE WITNESS.

THE TRUE WITNESS AND CATHOLIC CHRONICLE.

Sir,—It affords me great pleasure to chronicle in your paper, the success wholh has attended our Separate School in the recent examination for High School entrance and third class certificates. At the High School entrance examination, two boys from the Separate School took the highest marks in the test subject of arithmetic, while one of them headed the list, obt. inling 421 marks out of a possible 560. At the examination for certificates, at which the various High Schools of the county were represented by pupils, two Separate School boys, P. J. Holden and J. McCornick, were equally as successful, both taking certificates, the former obtaining eight hundred marks, about two hundred marks more than the required minimum for a certificate. The latter boy, who is but sixteen years of age, did almost as well. These same two boys have won the two scholarships of fifty dollars offered by the Very Rev. Father Farrelly, V.G., to pupils of the Separate School who, obtaining a certificate, merited the highest number of marks. Such success speaks well for Catholic education in Belleville.

EGANVILLE CONVENT.

OPINIONS OF AN OLD FRIEND OF THE ESTABLISH-MENT.

The Roman Diritto states that Lee XIII. has written an autograph letter to the King of Belgium, in which, while expressing his regret at the suppression of the Belgian Legation, he appeals to the heart and religious sentiments of His Majesty not to tolerate this alight offered to the Catholic Church, of which he has always shown himself an affectionate son.

The Duke of Norfolk leads a life of the quietest kind, taking the chair at nearly every Roman Catholic meeting held in London, but otherwise not coming very much to the front. He is of an altogeber princely munificence, giviving not thousands but tens of thousands towards the building of churches and schools and convents, and toward every charitable work carried on by the clergy of his own faith.

Cardinal Manning has stopped at Milan on his road home from Rome, and the Pungolo states that on visiting the cathedral he said:—"It would be my desire, my ambition, to erect a cathedral in London which, if not equal to this, would still be an imposing monumen to Ginstainity, and my predecessors left me a considerable sum to effect such an enterprise; but in existing circumstances I have thought it best to devote the interest of that cupital to creating a seminary in London."

The following is a translation of one of the letters of resignation of the French magistrates who declined to enforce the decrees against the Jesuits.

Exther Byrne, to whose exertions the Convent owes its first origin, and who is deeply interested in its success and usefulness. As to the individual merit of the several pupils, it would be no easy matter for me to draw distinctions by name, all, with very lew exceptions, being strangers to me, for not one of them was born at the time of my previous visit to Eganville.
I will say, however, that all the pupils may be warmly congratulated on passing through an ordeal that reflects credit on themselves and on the good Sisters under whose tution they have the good fortune to be, and who merit the utmost praise for their devotedness, ability and success.

I have attended many school and some college examinations, but was fain to acknowledge as I came away, while the parting song of the pupils still rang in my cars, that never on such occasions, have I experienced a pleasure equal to that enjoyed by me while attending the examination of the pupils of the Grey Nuns of Eganville Convent.

THE NEXT IRISH UPRISING.

M. L. J. Jennings presents this phase of the present agitation in his letter from London, published in the New York World: "After the winter," said Mr. Parnell, recently, "many landlords in Ireland will be willing and anxious to sell on fair and reasonable terms." What Mr. Parnell means by fair and reasonable terms may be left to the reasonable terms may be left to the reasonable terms and reasonable terms have be left to the reasonable terms and reasonable terms are secretly a landlord in all Ireland now who would not be very glad to sell his property on really fair terms, to be decided by any impartial umpire, whether drawn from New York, London, ex Lublin. But what is to happen during the winter? Mr. Parnell's words are not used at random. He knows perfectly well what is going on in Ireland at the present time. Everywhere men are secretly drilling, arms are being largely imported into the country, and preparations are being made for a rising on a scale never before seen in the country. If the plans now known to be in existence are carried out, the winter will be a reign of terror for the Irish landlords. Everything is favorable to the cause represented by Mr. Parnell. The Government itself has adopted substantially the principles upon which his operations are based. The English Radicals support him, for to uproot what exists is their policy, and it matters little where the uprooting first begins. The House of Lords is the only barrier, and it is about the same kind of barrier that a sheet of brown paper would be to a hundred ton gun. I should not wonder if many landlords in England as well as M. L. J. Jennings presents this phase of the would be to a hundred ton gun. I should not wonder if many landlords in England as well as Ireland were found particularly anxious to get rid of their property on "fair and reasonable terms."
