

consulates abroad offer a world wide network to assist companies seeking export markets. The trade commissioner provides introductions to potential clients, does mini market surveys, reports on the market environment and deals with questions of access to his territory for Canadian goods and services (see page 14).