

The Commission on the Status of Women has been established to study the problems of women in the United States and to make recommendations to the President and Congress.

The Commission is composed of representatives from the Executive Branch, the Legislative Branch, and the Judiciary. It is headed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who is the first woman to hold such a position in the history of the United States.

The Commission will hold public hearings and will submit a report to the President and Congress by the end of the year. It will also hold a series of public hearings in various parts of the country to hear the views of women on the various problems concerning them.

The Commission will also hold public hearings and will submit a report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.
It will also hold a series of public hearings in various parts of the country to hear the views of women on the various problems concerning them.

The Commission will also hold
public hearings and will submit a
report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.

The Commission will also hold
public hearings and will submit a
report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.

The Commission will also hold
public hearings and will submit a
report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.

The Commission will also hold
public hearings and will submit a
report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.

The Commission on the Status of Women
has been established to study the
problems of women in the United States
and to make recommendations to the President and Congress.

The Commission is composed of
representatives from the Executive Branch, the Legislative Branch, and
the Judiciary. It is headed by
Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who is
the first woman to hold such a
position in the history of the United States.

The Commission will hold public
hearings and will submit a report
to the President and Congress
by the end of the year. It will
also hold a series of public
hearings in various parts of the
country to hear the views of
women on the various problems
concerning them.

The Commission will also hold
public hearings and will submit a
report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.

The Commission will also hold
public hearings and will submit a
report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.

The Commission will also hold
public hearings and will submit a
report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.

The Commission will also hold
public hearings and will submit a
report to the President and
Congress by the end of the year.