A history of the madness, the folly, and the depravity of party and faction, is a grand defideratum.

Jay's Treaty.

The opposition to this infirument, which pervaded the union, and greatly diffurbed the administration of Gen. Walhington, was a factious procedure on the part of the democrats, who were led away by objections, plaufible, but not fubftantial-hardly one of which has been realiz-This affair evinces the folly and danger of yielding ed. to the fudden impulses of national feeling, which bear down every thing before them, and which wholly overpower the reafon and understanding of even the wife and good, who quoad hoc are only on a level with the most uninformed and uncultivated part of the community. Nearly all the predictions respecting this treaty have been the foothfayings of falfe prophets, of men fome led aftray by their prejudices-others by purturbed imaginations. Such of them as have been realized, have been more than counterbalanced by the folid advantages refulting from the adjustment of the differences between the two nations.

Of the errors of Mr. Jeff rson's Administration,

It is unneceffary to mention more than three, denoting two very opposite extremes of character—the one highly bold and daring —the others difplaying an equal degree of feeblenefs.

Treaty with England.

Two ministers appointed by Mr. Jefferson, had negociated a treaty with England, the best they could procure.
