

ABOUT FAMOUS MODERN AUTHORS

GODS OF MODERN GRUB STREET.

By A. ST. JOHN ADCOCK and E. O. HOPPÉ. A collection of 32 Biographical and Critical Studies, each accompanied by a studio portrait in sepia.

Mr. E. O. Hoppé is admittedly the most finished artist among present-day photographers. To sit for him is a distinction in itself, and his previous work has been so wonderfully successful that we expect, as we find, that in the camera portraits included in the volume he has given us a series of 32 studies of great charm and distinction.

The name of the well-known author and critic, Mr. A. St. John Adcock, on the title-page is ample warrant that the essays are thoroughly critical and informing, but their chief aim is to complement each portrait with a sketch of the sitter's personality, to tell the story of his career and indicate to what extent the facts of his life have influenced his outlook and his work.

The selection is of wide range without pretending to be exhaustive, and perhaps its distinguishing characteristic is the capacity shown by both author and artist to get under the skin of each subject, resulting in a book remarkable for its vivid and revealing character-studies.
