

to the Pharisees by our Saviour. Before I left, I reminded her of the necessity of praying for the Holy Spirit to further enlighten her mind. This she promised not to neglect."

We cannot close this slight and imperfect sketch of the results of Tract distribution in this city, without earnestly soliciting pious persons of all denominations to join us in this interesting and important enterprise. The distribution of Tracts is an acknowledged very useful auxiliary to the ministry of the gospel. Many, very many, eminently pious and devoted men have acknowledged that their first serious impressions were produced by the perusal of one of these little bodies of divinity. That great and terrible day, "for which all other days were made," will alone fully unfold the great good effected by the instrumentality of these silent but powerful monitors.

It is to be hoped that our efforts will no longer be cramped, nor our usefulness impeded for want of assistants. There are few who have not a spare hour or two on the Sabbath. And we would ask, could that time be better employed, than in distributing the word of life to their perishing fellow-sinners? Surely all who have the eternal welfare of those by whom they are surrounded at heart, and who have time at command, will no longer hesitate to unite with us in this humble endeavour to advance the interests of Messiah's Kingdom.
