SHORT
STORY.HER PENNY-
WORTH.COMPLETE
IN THIS NUMBER.

"A penny for your thoughts," said Miriam.

"It's not an original remark," said Howard Croighton. "But I'll take you up."

"It may not be original," she retorted bridling, "but it is better than sitting like an owl, as you have been those last ten minutes."

"Give me the penny."

"Not until you have delivered the goods," she said laughingly.

"Well, to begin, I was thinking how much I loved you."

"You don't expect a penny for an old story like that, do you?" she asked mockingly.

"It depends upon the value you place upon true love."

"I thought it was the other sort that was valued in dollars and cents. Look at Little Conover."

"Miss Conover," he explained, "is not purchasing love with her marriage settlements. Her father is paying for the privilege of calling grandchildren by a title."

"Don't you think you have absorbed a lot of socialism?"

"I am not a socialist," he defended. "I simply detect this modern device of seeking to bolster up a good American name with nothing worse than hard upon it, with the uncleanly pedigree of the sort of lordling who will marry for money, thereby realizing that it is the little-not name which is wanted."

She gravely passed her hand away. "It would be a poor missionary who would sell his Gospel," he declared.

"Do you suggest that I am in need of being saved?" she demanded, coloring.

"I hope not," he was quiet answered.

"I think you're just horrid. I never gave Lord Carnavan any encouragement to follow the house, and Croighton shrugged his shoulders over so lightly.

"If you think that I ever permitted him to imagine—"

"He has no imagination. Only an instinct."

Howard Croighton, she stormed, "I want you to understand that Lord Carnavan is a friend of mine. I do not permit my friends to be spoken of in that fashion."

"Then he is a friend?"

"Nothing more," she declared hastily.

"And very little of that," he finished.

THREE GREAT
DEMONSTRATIONSCommissioner Coombs
Addressed Large Audiences in the York
Theatre Yesterday.

Three large audiences greeted Commissioner Coombs at the York Theatre yesterday. In the morning he spoke from the text, A Man Full of Faith and of the Holy Ghost and his remarks were listened to with the deepest interest.

The afternoon service began at 3 o'clock, and long before that hour the lower floor of the theatre was well filled and crowds were surging into the galleries. On the platform besides the commissioner were Col. Sharpe, Lt. Col. Pagnier and the members of the local staff. Col. Sharpe presided. A large band was in attendance, and the first half hour was devoted entirely to the singing and playing of appropriate hymns.

Col. Sharpe introduced the commissioner, who on rising said that, like the Irishman, he wished to say a few words before he began to speak. In these few words he told of the great pleasure it gave him to be back in St. John once more, of the honor he felt in being again at the head of the Salvation Army in Canada, and of the marvelous success that had attended his efforts while abroad. After leaving the division he had been in God's work for over six years in the Australian colonies and later for eight years as commander of the forces in the mother country, the birthplace of the Salvation Army. Standing again in that grand old York Theatre his mind wandered back to scenes many years ago when in this same building, he had the pleasure of seeing so many souls brought to Christ. He then went on to tell of the organization of the army in St. John, how he labored amidst so many disappointments and thanked the citizens of St. John for the kindly interest they had taken in the army's welfare.

The commissioner read the one hundred and thirtieth Psalm and began with the words, Out of the depths have I cried unto thee, O Lord, he treated the chapter as a Bible reading, explaining the application of each verse. During his address he told of many experiences abroad.

In the evening, the commissioner addressed an audience which filled the York Theatre to its full capacity.

The platform was occupied by the staff, and behind a massed band furnished the music for hymns and religious songs.

The commissioner opened the meeting with a short prayer for guidance. An impressive song service followed, in which the commissioner sang a solo. The commissioner read from St. Matthew's gospel, interpreting the words with explanation or comment.

To some people acts of kindness come unobtrusively, and the commissioner, the most surprised to hear of these acts are the ones who are doing good works. The commissioner of these who are confronted with their own lack of goodness, are the persons who never do good deeds. He took account of every good deed, however small.

Here is a bold declaration, said Commissioner Coombs, and consequently a valuable one. If we should be held in business, and economical matters, how much more important is it to be held in our declaration of religion. A man may go mad over politics, but he is expected to keep quiet over religion. We ought to make as much ado about religion as is possible.

In beginning his address the commissioner expressed his appreciation of the warm welcome given to him by soldiers and friends. He asked God's blessing on his work. Already the day over thirty had expressed conversion. The text was taken from Hebrews 7th and 25th. "Wherefore He is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him, seeing that He ever liveth to make intercession for them." Hardships must be suffered, but like St. Paul he may say I have fought the good fight. I have kept the faith. The comprehensiveness and the all-embracing import of the message was dwelt upon by the commissioner. God's ability to save is not doubted, nor His willingness. But God ever-lasting and almighty as He is, cannot save a sinner who is not willing to come.

The commissioner told of his experiences in Scotland and the conversions of men, some of them the most hardened of sinners; and drew impressive pictures of the scenes there.

The commissioner called upon the audience to earnestly search their souls and to accept salvation. Many came forward at the close of the address.

SUPERIOR MERIT.
Remarkable Curative Properties of a Remedy for Indigestion and Stomach Weakness.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a preparation for the cure of dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion and stomach trouble, owes its great success as a cure for these troubles to the fact that it is prepared for disease and weakness of the stomach and digestive organs only, and is not recommended or advised for any other disease.

It is not a cure-all, but for any stomach trouble it is undoubtedly the safest, most sensible remedy that can be advised with the prospect of a permanent cure. It is prepared in tablet form, pleasant to taste, composed of vegetable and fruit essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal, every one of which acts effectively in digesting the food eaten, thereby resting and invigorating the weak stomach; rest is nature's cure for any disease, but you cannot rest the stomach unless you put into it something that will do its work or assist in the digestion of food.

That is exactly what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do, one grain of the digestive principle contained in them will digest 3,000 grains of meat, eggs or similar wholesome foods, they will digest the food whether the stomach is in working order or not, thereby nourishing the body and resting the stomach at the same time, and rest and nourishment is nature's cure for any weakness.

In persons run down in flesh and appetite these tablets build up the system, strengthen the stomach, and they digest flesh-forming food which the weak stomach cannot do, they increase the flow of gastric juice and prevent fermentation, acidity and sour watery risings.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores at 50 cents per package.

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman, of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate Nurse from the Philadelphia Training School, Philadelphia, and for years Chief Clinician at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has an advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education, and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They are regains health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes: "I am firmly persuaded, after years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use."

"Immediately after my marriage I had that my health began to fail. I became weak and nervous, with bearing-down pains, frequent backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctor prescribed for me, but I did not improve. I would bleed after eating and frequently became faint. I had a hard discharge and pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as if a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me in four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered a general remedy, it is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backaches, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as disordered sleep, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "wax-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Experience has proved this.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is free and confidential.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

James B. Daly asked what form the presentation would take, and on motion of R. J. Walsh, seconded by T. O'Brien, it was decided to present a purse to his Lordship. It was also agreed that the address shall be from the clergy and laity, and be read by Very Rev. Father Chapman.

Geo. V. McGoldrick, seconded by Aid. McGoldrick, moved that the Catholic societies turn out and escort the bishop to the Cathedral. This was decided on.

E. F. Greany suggested there should be a general committee to manage all details of the demonstration, and after several suggestions it was decided to form an executive committee composed of the presidents and recording secretaries of all the Catholic male societies in the district, the clergymen of the several parishes, and the permanent secretary and treasurer.

After the meeting, the men of the cathedral congregation had a meeting to arrange for the work of collecting.
