"AL" ADAMS, MILLIONAIRE POLICY KING OF NEW YORK DOESN'T LIKE PRISON.

Sudden Change from Waldorf Astoria to Sing Sing Disagrees With Him.

Friends of the Convicted Man Petition for Change of Climate, But Doctor Recommends Toll Cure.

Ossining, N. Y., May 12.—Although friends of Albert J. Adams have petitioned the state superintendent of prisons to have him transferred to another climate for the benefit of his health, the "policy king" who is serving his sentence here, has been asked instead to benefit his constitution by work.

He is not well, but his condition is largely due to luxurious living and the sudden change from the Waldorf Astoria to Sing Sing has not helped him. He is a little over 40 years of age, and has been in the prison for some time. He is a native of New York, and has been in the prison for some time. He is a native of New York, and has been in the prison for some time.

Adams' experience in the mad shop, where he was asked to build rope, caused him to faint and he required a cup of water dashed in his face to restore him to consciousness. His muscles are feeble and he has the appearance of one who has put forth no exertion for a score of years.

Recently from the Waldorf-Astoria, Adams feels the prison life not to his liking. Nothing pleases him but the frequent consultations with his lawyers, which occupy so much of his time that last week the warden refused to permit him to see any more attorneys for the day.

Adams' arrival in the prison, on April 27 last, has worked four days. He was assigned to the mail making room at the same table with William Hooper Young. Most of the time he has been in the hospital, where his somewhat excruciating demands have not tended to make him popular with the nurses. The maladies of which he complains are numerous.

John A. Johnson, the warden of the prison here, said today that the physician in charge had reported that Adams was suffering from diabetes and tuberculosis, and that he might have another attack of paralysis.

"It cannot be denied," said he, "that the man is in a bad condition, yet I think that if he took a little exercise he would be better. The doctor informs me that while Adams shows no trace of alcoholic excess he has been given to high living and that he might have another attack of paralysis."
