

164. John Keats.
 165. Thomas Dover. [Review inserted.]
 166. An Alabama student. [Corresp. inserted.]
 167. Six cases of Addison's disease.
 168. Addison's disease.
 169. Heart hypertrophy...with...adherent pericardium.
 170. Hemiplegia in typhoid.
 171. Treatment of diseases of the blood and ductless glands.
 172. Cerebral complications of Raynaud's disease.
 173. Lectures on angina...[Missing. Cf. no. 3567.]

 4th SERIES (1897-1901)
 174. Classification of the tics.
 175. Prognosis of pneumonia.
 176. Mitral stenosis; sudden death; ball thrombus in lt. auricle.
 177. Diagnosis of malarial fever.
 178. Unusual forms of parasthetic meralgia.
 179. Functions of a State Faculty.
 180. Ball-valve gall-stone in the common duct.
 181. Nurse and patient.
 182. Influence of Louis on American medicine.
 183. British medicine in Greater Britain.
 184. Hepatic complications of typhoid.
 185. Internal medicine as a vocation.
 186. Pneumonia.
 187. Occasional notes on American medical classics.
 188. Sporadic cretinism in America. [With plates.]
 189. Chr. symmetrical enlargement of the salivary and lachrymal glands.
 190. Intestinal features of typhoid.
 191. Ein Fall von Fistula oesophago-pleuro-thoracica.
 192. Relation of typhoid mortality and sewerage.
 193. Leprosy in the U.S.
 194. Diffuse scleroderma. [With plate.]
 195. Cerebral features of pneumonia.
 196. Cerebro-spinal fever.
 197. The arthritis of cerebro-spinal fever.
 198. The study of pneumonia.
 199. Problem of typhoid in the U.S.
 200. An acute myxoedematous condition.
 201. Clinical features of sporadic trichinosis.
 202. In memoriam—William Pepper.
 [202 a]. William Pepper.
 203. Sporadic cretinism. [With plates.]
 204. Chr. splenic enlargement with recurring gastro-intestinal haemorrhages.
 205. Etiology and diagnosis of cerebro-spinal fever.
 206. After twenty-five years.
 207. Diagnosis of typhoid.
 208. Hypertrophic cirrhosis of the liver.
 209. Splenitis anaemia.
 210. Home treatment of consumption.
 211. Multiple gangrene in malarial fever.
 212. Latent cancer of the stomach.
 213. Visceral lesions of the erythema group.
 214. Importance of post-graduate study.
 215. Elisha Bartlett.
 216. John Locke. [Cf. no. 1061.]
 217. Hemiplegia in typhoid.
 218. Hepatic complications of typhoid.
 219-20. [Typhoid fever] Analysis...of cases 1889-1899. Special features.
 221. The study of tuberculosis.
 222. Perforation and perforative peritonitis in typhoid.