An Editorial by Greeley That Was Not Printed In The Tribune.

The following very remarkable story is told in "James Russell Lowell and His Friends" (Scribner's), b. Edward Everett Hale. He is writing of Sidney H. Gay, then managing editor of the New York killed. But one hears it freely repeated in conversation, and I see no reason why it should not be printed now.

"With the news of the murder of Lipcoln there came to New York every other terrible message. The office of The Tribure of course received echoes of all the dispatches which showed the alarm at Washington. There were orders for the arrest of this man, there were suspicions of the loyalty of that man. No one knew what the morrow might bring.

"In the midst of the anxiety of such hours to Mr. Gay, the acting editor of that paper, there entered the foreman of the typesetting room. He brought with him the proof of Mr. Greeley's teading article, as he had left it before leaving the city for the day. It was a brutal, bitter, sarcastic personal attack on President Lincoln, the man who when Gay read the article was dying in Washing-"Gay read the article and asked the foreman if he had any private place where he could lock up the type to which no one but himself had access. The foreman said he had. Gay bade him tie up the type, lock the galley with this article in his cupboard and tell no one what he had told him. Of course no such article appeared in The Tribune the next morn-

"But when Gay arrived the next day at the office he was met with the news that 'the old man' wanted him and the intimation that 'the old man' was very angry. Gay waited upon Greeley.
"'Are you there, Mr. Gay? I have been looking for you. They tell me you ordered my leader out of this morning's paper. Is it your paper or mine? I should like to know if I cannot print what I choose in my own paper!" This in a great rage. 'The paper is yours, Mr. Greeley. The article is in type up stairs, and you can use it when you choose. Only this, Mr. Greeley: I know New York, and I hope and believe before God that there is so much virtue in New York that if I had let the article go into this morning's pa-per there would not be one brick upon another in The Tribune office now. Certainly I should be sorry if there were.

"Mr. Greeley was cowed. He said not a word nor ever alluded to the subject again. It was by this sort of service that Mr. Gay earned Mr. Wilson's praise that 'he kept Mr. Greeley up to the war.' '

Hindoo Daneing. Hindoo dancing bears no similarity to that of the European. Stage acting in shape of comedies and tragedies is hardly to be found among the Hindoos. The chief characteristic of their dancing is their dress, which very often is horri-ble and grotesque to look at. Their dances consist in wrestling, jumping and moving the shoulders, heads, hands, legs, as if agitated by violent convulsions, to the sound of musical instruments.

The Hindoo taste for music is so marked that there is not a single gathering, however small, which has not some musicians at its head. The instruments on which they play are, for the most part, clarinets and trumpets, they have also cymbals and several kinds of small drums. The sounds produced by these instruments are far from pleasing and may even appear hideous to European ears. matuva, or conductor, is the most remarkable of all the musicians. In heating time he taps with his fingers on a narrow drum. As he heats his shoulders head, arms, thighs and, in fact, all the parts of his body perform successive movements, and simultaneously he utters inarticulate cries, thus animating the musicians both by voice and gesture. Welsh Rabbit, Land The famous John Chamberlain of Washington had a recipe for Welsh rabbit which was a poem. It is as follows:

"Welsh Rabbit.—Four ounces of cheese, half an ounce of butter, a spoonful of made mustard, two tablespoonfuls of cream, cayenne and black pepper to

"Grate or chop the cheese then in a bowl with a spoon or in a mortar with a pestle, rub all to a uniform paste, adding or not, as you like, a tablespoonful of ale, porter, beer or champagne; make a slice of rather thick toast, which dip an instant in boiling water and place in the

Turning the Tassels. "Turning the tassel" is an interesting part of the commencement exercises at the Woman's college, Baltimore. All undergraduates there wear the cap and gown, and the place of the tassel on each mortar board designates the class of its wearer. Beginning at the right hand corner of the square top over which the tassel must hang in case of a freshman, each of the other three corners indicates respectively the other three classes. At the moment when the seniors file back from receiving their diplomas every other member of the student body pre by one concerted movement turns her tassel, thereby raising her rank. Great General of the Future. "How is your boy in the army getting along, Willerby?" inquired the old friend of the family.

"By George, sir," enthusiastically answered the father, who had just received from Algy another urgent request for money, "that boy is a masterly cam-paigner already. He gets into all sorts of tight places, but he always manages to keep in communication with his base of supplies."

Pertinent and Impertinent. "Doctor, your tonic made a new man "A new man? Well, how is he off financially?"

A little boy who was asked his name answered, "Well, they call me Jimmy for short, but my maidea name is James."

Picturing life "as it is was" in an Irish village, a contributor to The Cornhill Magazine diverges to tell a story of "Old Mike" who, with his wife Moira, occupied a mud cabin on the mountain.

To this mansion came his reverence one cold, showery morning in March, to hold a station. His umbrella was dripping, so, being a careful man, he placed it open in the space vacated by the animals, who were grazing outside

When the congregation had dispersed after the usual devotions, the priest went for a stroll while Moira prepared his breakfast; for to entertain his reverence afterwards is the crowning honor of a station. He had not far when a heavy shower obliged him to take shelter under a tree and send a little gossoon back for his

'Shure, it's makin' way I am for your riverence's ombrell," said old Mike. "Not a bit of it'll go through the door at all!" "Ah, nonsense, man!" said his everence, laughing; and stepping aside, he took the umbrella out of Moira's hand and closed it before Old Mike stared at it aghast, then he turned to his wife. "Glory be to heaven, Moira!" he said. "Is there anything beyant the power of the priest?"

Genius vs. Labor.

"Of what use is all your studying and your books?" said an honest farmer to an ingenious artist. "They don't make the corn grow, nor produce vegetables for market. My Sam does more good with his plow in one month than you can do with your books and papers in a whole year. What plow does your son use?' said the artist, quietly.

"Why, he uses --- 's plow, to be sure. He can do nothing with any other. By using this plow we save half the labor and raise three times as much as the old wooden concern. The artist guietly again turned over his sheets and showed the farmer a drawing of the lauded plow, Worth the Difference.

In S. L. Powers' story at the Middlesex Bar Association dinner the lawyer tried the case for the complainant. She sued a middle aged gentleman for breach of promise. He married another girl. The jury retired, the defendant did not. The jury found for the plaintiff in $800 damages.

The lawyer met the middle-aged entleman a few minutes later in the lobby of an adjacent hotel. "Squire," said the latter, did the jury decide?" 'Against you," was the answer.

"I didn't think they would do
