

The Search After Truth

OH! what is Truth? Where does she dwell?
 Not in the ancient, fabled well;
 No matter how long he may stare,
 Man sees his own face mirrored there.

Not in a part but in the whole
 Does Truth encase her shining soul.
 We see her tresses in the sun;
 The stars they deck her, one by one.