Gossip.

Braeburn Shorthorns.

Just at exhibition time there are many readers of these columns who are sizing up the live-stock situation with a view of either selecting a new herd sire or adding some new blood in the way of breeding females. Many breeders have visited the exhibitions for this purpose and have returned home still undecided or perhaps still unsuited. They must not however, run away with the idea that everything of any importance was brought out at some one or the other of the fairs. This year in particular many of the strongest herds were, owing to labor shortages, etc., unable to bring out their animals even, in many cases, after they had gone to the expense of fitting them for show. Other breeders were so busy that they, perhaps, never gave the exhibitions a thought. There were a number of the latter too, that could have put up splendid exhibits. Of these Braeburn Farm, owned by Charles McIntyre, of Scotland, Ontario, is one. Mr. McIntyre now has a herd at "Braeburn" that numbers close to 125 head, with over 69 breeding cows. These cows represent many of the most popular present-day strains and, while very few were in show condition many of them had calves at foot which, with a little more fitting would have stood up well in the junior classes at Toronto or elsewhere. His line-up of bull calves, as seen recently by an "Advocate" representative, were, with very few exceptions, all of show-ring calibre. We are speaking particularly of those sired by his own herd sire, Nero of Cluny (imp.). There were seven young sons of this sire in the stables, and we have yet to see seven stronger ones got by any one sire this year. Nero of Cluny (imp.), by Edgar of Cluny 2nd, was bred in the splendid herd of Lady Cathcart, Cluny Castle, and by his get he is proving himself to be one of Canada's premier sires. In the McIntyre herd, however, he has some excellent females to work on. There are a score or more big, deep cows, all with Scotch topped crosses, including Lavinias, Miss Symes, Rosebuds, Undines, Strathallans, Lavenders, Nonpareils, etc., and added to these are a number of good breeding matrons which came to the farm last fall with the purchase of the Frank Smith herd, and trace direct to famous old Beauty (imp.). Many of these are splendid milkers. Then there are almost a dozen young breeding cows got by the 1913 grand champion bull at Toronto, Missie Marquis. These six young cows without one exception are pleasing from the muzzle, all the way back, and they are mating exceptionally well with the present sire. Besides the young bulls referred to above there are several other youngsters all of which are of serviceable age and got by the former herd sire, Superb Lavender, a Miller-bred Lavender bull, got by Superb Sultan. The bulls are all priced, so we were informed, at a reasonable figure, quality considered, and Mr. McIntyre is also offering a half dozen or more mature cows, several of which are past their prime, but all well forward in calf and well worth the price asked. Full particulars may be had by addressing Chas. McIntyre, Scotland, Ontario, mentioning this paper.

The lesson was from the "Prodigal Son," and the Sunday school teacher was dwelling on the character of the elder brother. "But amidst all the rejoicing," he said, "there was one to whom the prodigal's return gave no pleasure, but only bitterness, one who did not approve of the feast being held, and who did not wish to attend it. Now, can any of you tell me who this was?" There was a breathless silence followed by a vigorous cracking of thumbs, and then from a dozen sympathetic little geniuses came the chorus: "Please, sir, it was the fatted calf."

An evangelist who was conducting nightly services announced that on the following evening he would speak on the subject of "Liars." He advised his hearers to read in advance the seventeenth chapter of Mark.

The next night he arose and said: "I am going to preach on 'Liars' to-night, and I would like to know how many read the chapter I suggested." A hundred hands were upraised.

"Now," he said, "you are the very persons I want to talk to—there isn't any seventeenth chapter of Mark."
