Queer, Isn't It?

RUTH CAMERON.

Performing Solemn Gyration to Barbic Music.

Dancing, too. Have you ever looked forward to an evening of it, and then, in the middle of the evening, been suddenly stricken with a wonder at yourself and all the other grown-up people that they should spend a whole evening solemnly performing fixed gyrations in an over-heated hall to barbaric music?

And books—why should we be content to sit for hours reading about things that never happened and people who never existed? Why should we be so palpitantly interested in their adventures, why should we follow them faithfully to the end of the book, instead of satisfying our curiosity by looking at the end and then throwing the book aside? Why, indeed.

And possessions of one sort or another, why should we work so hard to collect the superfluity of them we crave, when, after all, "you can only wear one tie, and one eyeglass in your eye, and one coffin when you die, don't you know?"

Trying To See The Wheels Go Round.

It is a dangerous thing to take one's pleasure apart and try to find what makes the wheels go round; if you aren't careful you will find yourself left with a mechanical, lifeless thing in which the wheels no longer do go round.

And yet, is it not also a dangerous thing never to get such a perspective on life, to just go on living and never ask "why" of anything?

Too much philosophizing, too much of the objective vision may make us discontented; too little makes us stupid.

The wise man is he who can look upon life objectively and learn therefrom philosophy for his disappointments without losing zest for his work and his pleasures.

And yet, can philosophy and zest ever subsist together? I wonder?

With My Letter Friends.

Question—Will you please take pity on my ignorance and tell me through the daily column about these three men—Sir Arthur Pinero, Eugene Walter, George M. Cohan?

Answer—Sir Arthur Pinero is an English dramatist, one of the foremost dramatic writers of the age. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is his best-known play. Eugene Walter is an American dramatist. "Paid in Full" is probably his best-known work. George M. Cohan is an American actor and dramatist. Farces and musical comedies are his forte. He is enormously popular and successful.

Rod and Gun.

Fishing is given first place in the April issue of Rod and Gun, the majority of the stories in this early spring number dealing with a subject which at this time of the year makes a special appeal to the out-of-door-man.

Besides the stories in which fishing plays a prominent part, and other stories in which fishing does not occur, the department edited by Robert Page Lincoln under the heading "Fishing notes," contains much that is of practical value to the angler, among the articles being one on "The Trail of the Angling Canoeist," Guns and Ammunition, edited by A. B. Gelkie, is replete with information for the gun crank or enthusiast. "The Trap" contains the latest records of trap-shooting events and some reminiscences of a well known Toronto shooter, "Johnny Townsend," while under the heading of the Kennel there is much to interest dog lovers, the Alredale being the subject under discussion this month. Rod and Gun is published at Woodstock by W. W. J. Taylor, Limited.

Your Boys and Girls!

If children are taught to use a spoon properly, that is to hold it correctly, there will be no further trouble when at table. The handle should never be held in the palm, but the end should slightly protrude beyond the middle of the hand. With a child this means a smaller spoon, but the habit once given can never be taken away.

Much work and confusion can be avoided when the children understand at night if each one is made the possessor of a small hat tree or clothes tree. These come in white enamel and stand about four and a half feet high and have eight branches, a branch for each article of wearing apparel. Clothing will be well aired, the room kept in neatness and order and everything ready in its place in the morning. The children love these accessories and it is a good way to teach them orderliness and hygiene.

UNAPPRECIATIVE MAN.

"My husband," sighed the weeping wife, "has made a ruin of my life. He does not seem to yearn or long for Higher Things, like Art and Song. The sordid things to him appeal; he'd rather have a good square meal, than sit with me through dreamful days, reciting Robert Browning's lays. A noble painting on the wall makes no appeal to him at all; with scorn he'll pass the picture by, and say he'd rather have a pie. Because the bread is always hard, because his porterhouse is charred, because the coffee's weak and thin, he'll make a most unseemly din. He can't be made to realize that noble odes beat oyster fries, that Ibsen's pen, surcharged with ink, surpasses sausage in the link, that Handel's grand harmonic burst beats schweitzer cheese or liverwurst. So here I sit upon the floor, and weep and wait forevermore."

Pleads Guilty of Having Three Wives.

"Count," Maker of Munitions, Saw No Hope in a Trial.

New York, April 7.—Publicly confessing that he was "very much married," Max R. Lynar, who posed as a Count and used many names, appeared before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions here and pleaded guilty of bigamy. He had three wives and admitted that he was born in the United States, although he has posed for years as a foreigner. He was continued on his bond of $10,000 and sentence will be pronounced next Tuesday.

More than three of Lynar's wives have been heard of, but the District Attorney has no official record of them. Among the names used by the prisoner were Max Chimang, Count London, Max Schimank, Count de Passey and Max Lynar London.

The first wife of the defendant was Amelia Wendt, whom he married in Poughkeepsie in 1890. By this marriage there is a son, now a young man. His next wife was Rose O'Brien of Albion, N.Y. He married her in 1912. His last wife was Lila Florence Allendorf, whom he married in the City Hall here last year. When arrested Lynar was living with his last wife.

Lynar's second wife, who was supposed to be missing, was ready to testify and information came to the defendant that the evidence of his bigamous marriage was available, and therefore he decided to plead guilty.

Lynar broke into a broad smile when he was asked: "Are you married?"

His answer, "Very much married," brought a titter from the spectators. Judge Rosalsky elicited the information that Lynar was not exactly a fugitive from justice in Germany, but that he had forfeited a bond of 200 marks for an assault, on a man who had interfered with his pleasure while sleighing. After that he returned to this country.

Lynar came under the observation of government officials some time ago when they were investigating his connection with foreign affairs. The prisoner had always insisted that he was a nobleman by birth but had spent much of his time in this country. He is a manufacturer of war supplies at Newburgh and is 42 years old.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dandle the moths until the candle drew them. I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X-Lamp and GASTHEAT Radiators fill all light and heat requirements.
