Butter was supplied in smaller quantities than is usual. Eggs, if fresh, are much sought after, but now it is the stocked article that reaches the Cargo is all safe.

A Port Stanley correspondent tele-phones to the St. Thomas Journal: The little 30-ton schooner, Maple Leaf was towed into the harbor last evening about 7 o'clock by the tug Snowstorm. The Maple Leaf cleared Cleveland for Rondeau at 11 o'clock a.m. Friday, loaded with coal oil, belonging to Archie Patterson, of Ridgetown. The schooner was in charge of Capt. J. Robinson of Leveland 10 o'clock a.m. Robinson, of Leamington, owner; Ivan Robinson, mate, brother of the captain, and Seaman D. S. Adams, of Chatham, with J. A. McIntosh, of Ridgetown, as passenger.

The wind, when leaving Cleveland, was southwest, and a good stiff breeze. The wind increased to a heavy gale, and at 7 p.m., about 25 miles off Cleve land, it was decided to take in the canvas, and only run under the stay-sail. In doing this Mate Ivan Rob-inson was letting the fore sail down, when the running gear jammed. He took hold of the canvas to give it a jerk, when the fore boom, which was pitching from side to side, owing to the heavy sea, knocked him overboard. The captain immediately had the yawl launched, but in his excitement, forgot to take oars. The other two men could see neither the mate or captain, it being so dark. They heard the captain yell twice, as if to his brother.

The men heaved the vessel to at once, let the anchor go, and showed lights all night. On Saturday morning they weighed anchor and, under stay sail, made for the north shore, making it at Eagle. At 11 p.m. they let anchor go again, and under stay sail, Sunday morning, started down the lake, reaching here about 7 p.m. D. S. Adams had had very little experience as a seaman and J. A.
