The river rippled on, the light of the moon grew brighter, the odors from flowers and fruit sweeter in the evening air. Dolores had still much to tell. She kept no detail from her children, but told them all that had happened from the first moment that the letter had come until the moment when, after reading that letter, her father died suddenly, as she believed, from the shock of finding Sir Karl guilty.

"When my father died," she continued, "I could bear the disgrace no longer. I gave up Seaside, my home, my friends, even my name, and came hither, where I hoped to be able to forget my sorrow and live in peace—forget the shame that I had brought upon myself. You will find the shame and sorrow follow you as it did me, and that people will regard you with kindly pity. Ah, give me anything rather than that!"

"But, mamma," said Kathleen, "we have no cause for shame; we had nothing to do with what happened."

"It falls and rests on us, just the same," she replied. "A deserted wife! Ah, children, when you understand all that that means! A deserted wife is branded even by the pity and compassion she excites."

Then Sir Karl's daughter rose from her mother's side and stood erect in the white moonlight. She raised her clear delicate face to the sky. She had been a child when she knelt in the long grass two hours before. She was a woman now, with the light of a high resolve on her face.

"Mamma," she said, "have you the two letters written by this woman? Will you show them to me?"

"I will, I have your father's portrait, too. I have not looked at it for sixteen years, but I will show it to you."

"Thank you, and during these sixteen years you have not heard one word of the man who loved you and your children so dearly?"

"No—not Gertrude,"

Gertrude lowered her childlike face to her mother.

"And you believe, mamma, that for sixteen years he has been with—with this rival of his?"

"I must believe it, Gertrude. Surely, if he had been anywhere in the wide world but with her, he would have written to me. Why should he not?"

"But, mamma," she argued, "cut both ways. If you argued on such loving terms, so much the less reason is there for deserting you in such a fashion."

Dolores looked in bewilderment at the child; she had never viewed the matter in that light before.

"Mamma," said the girl, with a grave solemnity that startled Dolores. "I do not believe it—I will not believe it. If my father was the good and honorable man you describe him, would he have deserted a woman with whom he had been married for sixteen years?"

"Dolores," she said, "you would maintain his innocence as if I would maintain the truth of heaven. He is innocent, mamma," continued Gertrude, "as surely as the stars shine in the sky above us. Oh, how could you, who love him, have believed him otherwise?"

"She turned and pointed to the river. You might as well say that suddenly and without cause that water could become black as ink! Oh, mamma, how could you believe that my father was false?"

"What else could I do, Gertrude, my child?"

"Do! Trust him! I am his only child, and I do not remember one line of his dear face, but I would scorn to believe him guilty on the word of such a woman as that!"

"Oh, child," said Dolores faintly, "you have a golden heart."

The depths of her soul were stirred; it was as though an angel stood before her and spoke for the long lost man. From that hour in which she had received Lola's letter she had accepted her husband's guilt as a matter of course.

"But, Gertrude," she said piteously, "do you not see that is the only possible explanation of his absence? If he is elsewhere, why has he not written to me. He must have known that, loving him as I did, every hour of his absence would be torture to me; and, if he is not under a baneful influence, I repeat, why has he not written to me?"

"I do not know. You will say, mamma."

me, that reason or judgment does not enter into my counsel. I go by instinct, by my feeling, by the voice of my heart, and I know he is innocent, as you know he is."

Dolores' face dropped on her breast; she felt rebuked by the firm faith of her daughter.

"I am sure of this," said Gertrude, "that the truth will be discovered one day. If murder will out, innocence will be vindicated. My father's name will yet be as unsullied as the stars in the heavens. Rely upon it, mamma, there has been somewhere or other a terrible mistake."

Could it be possible? A terrible mistake! In what way? Dolores knew Lola's writing only too well. Her husband had vanished, there was no doubt about that.

What mistake could there be? Was it possible that she had allowed her jealousy to be too easily roused, that she had been quick to judge and condemn? But everyone else had judged Sir Karl in the same manner. Almost before she had time to form a thought herself, she had read the story in a dozen different papers, in a hundred different faces, had heard it in a hundred different voices. How could she be mistaken?

"Innocence will be vindicated," repeated Gertrude. "I know there are people so weak of faith that they think heaven does not interfere with the concerns of this lower world. If the falling of a sparrow be a matter of moment, of how much greater importance is the character of a man, mamma. I believe, most solemnly that what we thought chance—the dropping of that lady's purse—was the very finger of Providence. For sixteen years men and women have believed my father guilty; but something tells me that the terrible mystery will be cleared up. I will devote my life to the task of clearing my father's name."

And again Dolores murmured: "You have a golden heart, Gertrude! You are so like him!"

She was startled and unprepared by this sudden change. It seemed like a new atmosphere, a new world to her. She could hardly believe that she was the same woman who had come to see the sun set over the river while she was wheeled by the sense of her husband's guilt. It was as though a young and vigorous defender had risen for him; as though fresh light were thrown upon that dark mystery.

"I pray heaven," cried Gertrude, with sudden passion, "that I may never be down to die until I have accomplished my end. Mamma," she continued, "show me my father's portrait, and I shall know him better when I have seen his face. And you say he loved me, mamma—loved me very dearly?"

"He did, indeed, Gertrude."

"Then even the most fitting person to work for him, do you mean to say that of all those who loved him, there was not one to defend him or believe in him?"

"Not one," replied Dolores.

"Poor papa! Well, I believe in him; and I vow that I will establish his innocence, be he living or dead! Oh, how have you lived, mamma, with this terrible cloud hanging over you? Come indoors quickly; I long to see papa's face."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

In silence Lady Almonde unlocked the drawer that had not been opened for sixteen years, and took from it a little parcel tied with faded ribbon. Opening it, she gave Lola de Ferras's two letters to Gertrude. In silence the girl read them.

"People say it is possible to tell character from handwriting," she said then. "If I were to judge from this, I should say that the woman who wrote these letters was a combination of good and evil. There is about this writing nothing open, frank, or free. I should never have trusted her. In these letters, in which you find a certain proof of my father's guilt, I read his perfect innocence. She does not say, 'Sir Karl is with me.' He does not say, 'She writes, 'You will never see him again.' She triumphs over you. She tells you that she has her revenge; but she does not tell you in so many words that my father has deserted you. After reading her letters, I am the more certain that he is quite innocent."

Dolores could not take her eyes from the fair flushed face, so bright, so eager so full of proud defiance.

"If the whole world," she cried, "had told me that my father was guilty, I would have disputed the statement. Put the letters back again, mamma. They are like venomous snakes. I could fancy that even the paper was full of poison. Put them away; perhaps some day I may ask you again, mamma. Now, mamma, dearest, show me my father's portrait."

With reverent fingers Dolores placed it in the girl's hands.

"Do not let me see it," she said. "I think it would kill me to look at his face again."

But Gertrude studied it eagerly, and Kathleen, coming to her side, looked over her shoulder.

The old proverb: "To be at peace prepare for war," is the secret of the larger part of life's successes, whether of nations or individuals.

The difference between the healthy, happy mother who has healthy children, nurse and nourish, and the weak, nervous mother, with a weakling child, is mostly a difference of preparation.

The great preparative for motherhood is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep. It gives the mother strength to give her child. It imparts elasticity and strength to the organs of maternity so that the baby's advent is practically painless.

"I take pleasure in writing you to let you know about your 'Favorite Prescription,'" says Mr. E. E. Fricke, of Petersburg, Menard Co., Ill. "My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and after trying everything I could think of I made up my mind to try 'Favorite Prescription.' I sent Chicago a box of six bottles, which my wife took, a tablespoonful three times a day, until the baby came. She felt better after taking the first bottle, and the baby was born weighing nine and a half pounds. To-day he is six months old and weighs twenty-two pounds. He is as good a child as any one could wish. The doctor says he is as healthy as any baby could be, and also the doctor says our 'Favorite Prescription' was the cause of such a healthy baby. I felt I owed you this much for the good you did my wife and myself. I hope you will mention this to others who may be in need of such help, and you may refer them to me, as I would be glad to tell of the good of such a valuable medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

C.A. was looked upon as the winner, but the best he could do was to obtain second place. There were nineteen starters. The course was eastward to the Down Valley down the valley to a point near the C. P. R. bridge, then south to the ravine back of the grounds, and over three-quarters of the track, and then over the same course again, returning to the track and finishing by the grand stand. The finish was as follows: E. C. Hallman, O.A.C.A., Guelph, 1; time, 28:24. W. J. Sherlock, Hamilton, Y. M. C. A., 2; time, 28:16. M. Allen, W.E.Y.M.C.A., Toronto, 3; E. C. Stevenson, E.C.Y.M.C.A., Toronto, 4; John Weir, O.A.C.A., Guelph, 5; W. Durand, W.E.Y.M.C.A., Toronto, 6; P. C. The date for the lacrosse club's big tramp smoker has been fixed for Tuesday, Nov. 27, at the city hall. Tickets are now out, and a big crowd is looked for as nearly all the fellows of the city have promised to take part.

YACHTING.
THE AMERICAN CUP DEFENDER.
New York, Nov. 17.—The order for the new yacht to defend the America's cup in the match of August next against Shamrock II, was placed with the Harlan and Phillips Co., New York, 14, the contract required in the case being signed in this city on that day. Now the work of building will be carried on as fast as it is practicable. An early launching of the new boat is required, because of the early date of the races, so it is probable that the new craft will be afloat the latter part of April or the first of May.

McGEE KNOCKED OUT.
Toronto, Nov. 17.—Eph McGee, of this city, the champion heavy-weight boxer of Canada, was knocked out in the third round of what was to have been a 20-round fight by Al Weinig, of Buffalo, here tonight, before 1,500 people, at the Casino Athletic Club show at the Bijou Theatre. McGee was four pounds heavier than his opponent, the men weighing in at 185 and 161 pounds respectively. The Canadian was much cleverer than Weinig on his feet, but lacked punching power. The first round closed with matters about even, but after that Weinig showed his strength to great advantage, and at every opportunity, both in with straight left, followed with a left to the body. In the third round the American got down to work, and did a great deal of dabbling and blocking. A series of left hooks followed, and a deadly smash to the body put the Canadian on the ropes, and another left swing sent him to the floor. He made an effort to get up, but was in a very weak condition, and a couple of hard punches put him completely out, his seconds throwing up the sponge. In the preliminaries, Joe Cull and Jack Smith, two local men, boxed ten rounds to a draw, and Jim Lawless, of this city, defeated Jack Matthews, of Hamilton, in five rounds.

CURLING.
At the annual meeting of the Petrolia curling club, the following officers were elected: Patron, Mr. J. L. Englehart; patroness, Mrs. J. L. Englehart; chaplains, Rev. A. G. Graham, Rev. W. L. Chalmers, James C. Waddell; vice-president, Albert Duncan; secretary, Hugh Simpson; treasurer, John Walker; committee of management, Jas. C. Waddell, Albert Duncan, John Simpson, honorary members, W. G. Fraser, W. K. Gibson, George Sanson, Capt. Woodward and presidents of Sarnia, Forest, Glencoe, Detroit and St. Thomas clubs.

GOLF.
VARDON AGAIN THE WINNER.
New York, Nov. 17.—In an exhibition golfing match at Van Cortlandt Park today, Harry Vardon, open champion of the United States, beat the best ball of two local players, equalling the record for the course, 81, held by himself. In the morning round Vardon opposed Wm. Freehand, of Laurence Harbor, and Val Wood, of the Van Cortlandt Club, and in the afternoon, W. C. Morrill, of the local club, took the honors.

IF THE LIVER IS DERANGED

There is fallow complexion, Fullness About the Stomach and Pains in the Shoulders and Back—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Act Promptly and Directly on the Liver.

By a careful consideration of the following symptoms you can decide for yourself if your liver is torpid or inactive. The liver is the largest organ connected with the digestive system, and as a filterer of bile from the blood is to a very large extent responsible for the health of the whole body.

A sense of fullness and oppression about the stomach, a pale, fallow complexion and pain in the shoulders and back are among the first indications of a deranged liver.

Then there comes indigestion, wind on the stomach, headache, coated tongue, a bitter taste in the mouth, depression of spirits and despondency. The bowels become irregular, and constipation and looseness alternate. The bile left in the blood by an inactive liver poisons the blood and causes liver spots, blotches and pimples.

So great is the influence of the liver over the health of other organs that physicians have called the liver the governor or controller of the body. The prescription from which Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are prepared was perfected by the doctor in his immense practice, and has proven the greatest liver regulator ever discovered. It acts directly and promptly on the liver, making it active and vigorous, and as a filtering organ at the same time it regulates and tones up the kidneys and bowels and sets the whole filtering and excretory system in healthy working order.

Notwithstanding the fame of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills throughout this continent, you will never fully realize and appreciate their value until you have actually used them, and only then can you fully understand why they have such an enormous sale.

In these days of experimenting with all sorts of new, untried remedies, appliances and treatments, it is a comfort and pleasure to know that you can turn to this prescription of Dr. A. W. Chase and find in it a safe and certain cure for the many dangerous and complicated disorders of the liver, kidneys and bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are sold in 25 cent boxes at all dealers or Edmundson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Stone in the Bladder.

THE REMARKABLE CASE OF A
MONTREAL MERCHANT WHO WAS CURED BY DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Stone in the bladder is one of the most excruciating and agonizing of kidney diseases.

Some of its symptoms are sudden stoppage of the flow of urine, straining, deposits in the urine, pain in the region of the bladder and in the back, constant uneasiness and general failing of the health.

This is a disease that medical men tell us can only be cured by operation; yet we have many instances on record where Doan's Kidney Pills have effected a complete cure and saved the patient from the dangers and sufferings of the surgeon's knife.

The following well-authenticated case of Mr. G. A. LeBlanc, the widely-known and popular manager of R. J. Toole's store, 1533 St. Catharine street east, Montreal, P. Q., is one of the most remarkable in the history of kidney medicines in Canada. We venture to say that no other remedy but Doan's Kidney Pills can produce such a cure as this.

Here is Mr. LeBlanc's own statement: "The Doan Kidney Pills Company: 'Gentlemen,—After four years of good health and after having recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to friends and acquaintances during these four years of happy life, and also having had proofs of the good results obtained in other cases, I thought it my duty to acquaint you with my case, which is undoubtedly one of the most severe you will encounter."

"During the three long years that I was afflicted with kidney disease I suffered agony. Many a time I had to leave off business suddenly and be carried in a cab to my home, where I would remain for several weeks suffering the most intense pain."

"At last a saviour came to me in your Doan's Kidney Pills, which were recommended to me by one of your patients."

"I used only two boxes, and, thank God, they entirely cured me. They caused me to pass a stone, the size of the stone found in ordinary cases, and of the same shape. I have it here to show anyone wanting proofs of the efficacy of your pills."

"The three doctors treating me left in surprise, and I was glad to leave off the use of morphine, which had been administered to me most freely to allay the pain."

"I am now an altogether new man, and can say I owe it all to Doan's Kidney Pills."

"I am forty-five years of age, and manager of a large concern, and will be only too happy to recommend your pills for kidney troubles to anyone suffering."

THE PEOPLE'S PROOF

Want anything stronger to convince of the merit of any article in daily use than the unsolicited testimony of the people who've used it? The

has all Canada to its back in testifying to its merits in everything that goes to make it the most perfect stove in the world of stoves today—and the army of "Souvenir" owners recruits by the thousands every year. Would that be the case if it had not been proven "the best by test"—for appearance—for durability—for convenience—for up-to-date-ness in appointments—improvements, economy in fuel and general good service as a heater, cooker and baker? If you're thinking of a new range question yourself a bit—then put
