FIGHTING FOR A NAME.

Another cheer breaks over the water, as he reaches his side and yields his precious burden into the hands of the eager sailors, who lay it gently in the bottom of the boat. Ned is then helped in, and the men row back to the vessel, where the savior and the saved are soon out of danger, for the heart of the lady is beating and they know that she is living.

At the command of the captain the sailors in the boat put off again for the yacht, and in less than fifteen minutes all on board are transferred to the steamer, the yacht is taken in tow, and on the steamer goes again.

There are two or three physicians on board, and they volunteer their services in behalf of the unconscious woman whom Ned had rescued.

She was borne to a double stateroom attended by her anxious husband and friends, where she soon recovered from her swoon, and was pronounced out of danger. She had been leaning over the railing at the time of the collision and the shock had sent her with one bound over the side of the yacht into the sea.

Ned, meantime, had been furnished dry clothing by the captain, and though the outfit was much too large for him, the suggestion of his mother, regarding his overcoat enabled him to conceal it. He was then alone, and while he found himself none the worse—though a little weary—from his sudden bath and exciting adventure.

Everybody was eager to make a hero of him, but he modestly withdrew from sight, hiding himself in a stateroom and did not attempt to leave until most of the passengers were ashore.

Then, as he was about to follow, a sailor sought him, and, touching his cap with almost an air of reverence, informed him that the captain would like to see him in the saloon.

Ned repaired thither, and that officer remarked, with his most genial smile:

"You're wanted, my young friend—the gentleman with whom you saved wishes to speak with you."

Ned would have preferred to go his way without undergoing the ceremony of being effusively thanked for what he had done, but he would not be discourteous; so he followed the captain and was soon ushered into the presence of the party from the yacht.

As he entered the stateroom his glance rested first upon a beautiful lady, with silvery hair and sweet, delicate features, who was lying in the lower berth wrapped to the chin in soft rose blankets.

"This is the young man, sir," said the captain, thus introducing Ned to a portly, fine-looking, but rather pompous old gentleman, who immediately seized his hand in an almost convulsive grasp, while he seemed greatly agitated by the thought that he was holding the hand of the man who had saved his life.

"Heaven bless God, reward you for the life you have saved, for I never can," he exclaimed in tremulous tones. "Now, tell me your name, my brave young friend, that we may know to whom we owe so great a debt."

"Pray, sir, do not make the obligations too great," Ned said, feeling embarrassed at being made so conspicuous before strangers. "It is but play for me to swim."

"That may be," interposed the gentleman, with increasing emotion, "but you have saved a precious life all the same, and the debt is not lessened by that fact. Your name, if you please, my dear fellow."

"Edward Heatherton, sir."

"Great heaven!" cried the man, suddenly dropping the hand he held, as he would have dropped a red-hot coal, and staggering back from Ned as if he had struck him a blow, instead of having very quietly uttered his own name.

CHAPTER XVII.

Ned regarded the man with wonder at this sudden and strange behavior. "What?" cried the man, "do you not know me?" "This extreme agitation at the mere mention of my name?"

Then a sudden flush rose to his brow. There could be but one explanation of it; these people must be connected in some way with the man who had wronged his mother before his birth and were consequently taken back at being confronted by the son of the man who had been guilty of that wrong.

Ned searched the man's face with an eager eye, as these thoughts occurred to him, but he read there only pride, arrogance, and an indomitable will, and was instantly repelled thereby.

Then he turned his glance from him to the frail figure rising from the berth, and his heart went forth at once to the gentle, sweet-faced woman, for she seemed in every way the opposite of her haughty husband, and was regarding him with a surprised and eager wistfulness that touched him deeply.

"What is it, dear? Why are you so disturbed?" "What did he say his name is?" she asked in a gentle but wondering tone, for she had not distinctly caught the name.

"Heatherton—Edward Heatherton, madam," Ned responded, watching her closely as she said.

"Heatherton?" "Why, the same as ours," she said, catching her breath slightly in pronouncing it.

Ned's heart gave a painful leap at her words.

FOR SECOND CONSECUTIVE YEAR PLATE GOES TO DYMENT STABLE

Sapper of the Barrie String Wins Premier Event of Canadian Turf.

The King's Plate, the premier event of the Canadian turf, was run at Toronto on Saturday in the presence of 20,000 persons, and Sapper, the game son of Corktown, won in a field of four, making the second consecutive victory for Dymont, Thessalon, of the Barrie stable, having captured it in 1903. Nimble Dick and War Whoop, the second and third horses, made the struggle, with Hawkins, owner, by Mayor Beck, close on their trail. The race, in point of attendance, was a record breaker. Twenty-six books and one combination found it impossible to handle the money that was attempted by those of the sporting fraternity. Sapper was at odds of 5 to 2, and had Barrie, his native town, backed him heavily there is not the least doubt that the odds would have been 10 to 1. The odds that started at 10 to 1 and 10 to 1, War Whoop, never came below 10 to 1. War Whoop, $100. Mr. Wells bought Kate Hard-castle, his dam, from Mr. J. E. Seagram, at one of his sales for a very small sum.

The time of the race was 2:12. All in all the day broke all records—time, books and attendance.

Starter Murray lined the fourteen horses up at 4:40. conspicuous in the parade was War Whoop, with his white stockings and up, and passed the betting ring. Nimble Dick was in the lead, followed by Sapper, who was one that brought shouts from the laymen in the crowd as the horses finished the first quarter, and a strange thrill crept along the nerve of his arm to his heart. He believed that he was a woman whom he could both love and reverence.

"Believe me, dear madam, I could ask no greater reward for what I have done than to have won such kindly words from you," he said, with a quiver of emotion in his voice, then, gently reaching her hand, he bowed courteously, but with something of conscious dignity to the other witnesses of the scene, after which he turned and abruptly left the room before anyone realized his intentions.

Healthy Kidneys. Pure Blood.

BY MEANS OF THE KIDNEYS ONLY CAN THE BLOOD BE PURIFIED AND THE KIDNEYS ARE KEPT HEALTHY BY

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

At this season of the year the kidneys are always sure to be more or less deranged.

The worst effects of filtering from the blood the poisonous impurities which result from the artificial winter life is too much for them, and spring finds the blood clogged and the kidneys in a sluggish and clogged condition.

The effects are felt throughout the entire system. The liver, in sympathy with the kidneys, becomes slow and torpid in action, the bowels are constipated and digestion is impaired, giving rise to headaches, dizzy spells and feelings of discomfort.

The quickest and most satisfactory way of setting the kidneys right is the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This great family medicine is indicated by the most reliable medical authorities. Acting as it does on kidneys, liver and bowels, it is not only prompt to relieve, but thorough and lasting in the benefits which it bestows.

Next to a personal test of this preparation, probably the best evidence of its value is found in the enormous sale which it has throughout the length and breadth of this continent.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

A SUNDAY SERVICE.

Brantford, Ont., May 23.—The Grand Valley Electric Railway commenced yesterday morning to run an hourly car service. The first car left here at 8 a.m., and had fair patronage, and each succeeding car had a better load. One of the largest open summer cars took the afternoon train, and it was crowded. The public have the privilege of enjoying the company's beautiful park half-way between Brantford and Paris, or visiting Paris.

Time For the Fair.

This is not too soon to go to the World's Fair and tens of thousands are going there daily. The reduced fares on the C. P. R. started last month and are being taken advantage of all over the country. For a fifteen days' return trip it costs only $16.00, and over the fastest route, via the F. & N. city passenger agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, will tell you all about it.

NO JEWELS IN TOMB.

Hudson, N. Y., May 21.—There were no valuable jewels in the Livingston vaults at the cemetery in this place, according to a letter received today by the Hudson Register from John Henry Livingston, who writes from France, where he has been reading the story about the looting of the burial vault. Mr. Livingston says that no ruby necklace or anything else in the shape of valuable jewelry was buried with "Lady Mary" Livingston when her body was placed in the tomb fifty years ago.

The tenth inning was most disastrous for the Blue Labels. They had been going well until the extra inning, when the Londoners landed on Howell furiously, touching his delivery for six hits and exciting the fielders to such an extent that they juggled everything possible. Howell was blamed for the breakdown and was replaced by Crowe at the tail end of the inning. Howell, however, was not an easy man to replace, and the loss of the game, while he was hit freely, the fielding was not what it might have been. The Blue Labels were unable to redeem themselves in the last half.

The McClary team will have to take several gallons of some good tonic if they wish to play the quality of ball demanded by the City League. They are weak now—decidedly weak. Where they need the strengthening is in the fielding alone. In early and Steele, the team has a good battery. There is some good talent in their nine, and it sorely needs pulling together. The Rockets did not have much trouble in winning the game. Twelve errors aided them in this, together with ten hits. They scored in the first, third, fourth, seventh, eighth and ninth innings, while the fourth inning was only able to do anything in the sixth when they scored three runs. The score:
