MAYOR CRITICIZED THE ASSESSMENT

His Worship Says a Board Will No. 1 Committee of Board of Equalize the Figures This Year.

The Mayor Refused to Put Himself on Record as Being in Favor of Any Site for City Hall.

Mayor Graham spoke on matters of emportance to the city of London in evening at Collins' Hall, dealing with what he termed the "rotten" condition of the city's assessment, the new West London bridge, city hall sites, and the wisdom of appointing Mr Grant Henderson, of Hamilton, as sublicity commissioner.

That the assessment in London is grossly inequitable, and glaringly discrepant, is the contention of the mayor, and he affirms that this condition will be corrected before the close of 1912, and the revised system will operative in the taxation of the city for 1914.

Under the present system, by which each separate piece of realty is assessed independent of its neighbor the mayor claims that there are many great discrepancies by which the city oses much revenue. He cited many instances using his own residential property and his business establishment for the purpose of bringing home

After a long discussion at No. ommittee of the board of education an address to the members of the West Tuesday afternoon, it was decided t London Boosters' Association Tuesday recommend to the board that the maxium salary for lady teachers in the public schools be raised from $750 to $800, and that the principals' salaries be increased from $1,500 to $1,600. The request of the Collegiate Instiute teachers was laid over for furher consideration. As their increases were not to apply until 1913, the board ensidered that there was no need o aste with this application.

Dr. Teasdall thought that the board had dealt generously with the teachers in the past, and they could trust the board to still deal generously with them.
