

Mount Royal. The mountain was thus named by the discoverer of Canada, when he first saw the St. Lawrence river and the landscape from its summit. The toboganing slide here is partly an artificial one. It is a big structure of logs and planks made in an inclined plane, up one side of which there are steps, and down the side beside it a smooth, ice-covered slide. There is room on top like a little platform upon which you settle yourself on your tobogan. To tell the truth, there's no danger on proper hills. A man sits behind and steers with his foot.

GAMES ON THE RIVER.

The sensation is exciting. You lose your breath as the snow dashes up into your face, and you have all the feeling of going on the road to a regular smashup, but before the smash comes, your sleigh eases off as gently as it started, and you get up and want to do it again. If you stand to one side of the slide, and see a tobogan whiz past you like a shot, and see the frightened faces of the strangers who are having their first try, you feel as if you were looking at a group who were going to destruction; but by-and-bye you see them coming up hill again laughing at their fears.

The Montreal Toboganing Club has a splendid series of slides a short ride from the Windsor. The inauguration night was
