PLOUR.—The week's operations have been on a much more restricted. PLOUR.—The week's operations have been on a much more restricted scale than for some time back. Receipts have been light but ample for the small consumptive demand, a few round parcels of super have changed hands mostly on private terms, but at rates believed to be in favor of the purchaser. The speculative feeling has greatly absted, and intending purchasers now prof r holding off till actually requiring supplies, content to take the risk of paying sven higher rates should such be necessary. Most holders on the other hand finding themselves unable to sell except by making liberal concessions, are likewise awaiting the turn of events on opening of navigation; little is therefore done beyond supplying present consumptive wants, which have become very restricted, as well on account of the extreme prices, as the unfavorable condition of the country roads. Holiable quotations either in the higher or lower grades are slifficult to supply, owing to the extreme price grades are slifficult to supply, owing to the extreme price grades are slifficult to supply, owing to the extreme price grades are slifficult to supply, owing to the extreme price grades are slifficult to supply, owing to the extreme price grades are slifficult to supply, owing to the extreme price grades are slifficult to supply, owing to the extreme price grades are slifficult to supply owing to the extreme for have been exceptional sales both above and below our figures. The demand for supers has been mostly for baker's use, and only the better samples have engaged attention.

Hill Flour continues firm, with improving tondency, fewer operations can however be noted than proviously.

BAG Flour—There is little offered, and but a restricted demand; choice sells at full rates, but common continues to drag.

OATMAL has been tending upward; and transactions to some extent at our advanced quotations may be noted.

WHEAT.—There have been no sales on the spot, not an extended delivery, that transulred, tates much more restricted scale than for some time tions to some extent at our advanced quotations may be noted.

WHEAT.—There have been no sales on the spot, nor any for forward delivery that have transpired, rates are therefore nominal

PEASE—The improving tendency in Britain has slimulated prices, and holders are now very firm at the advance, there are however very few sales latterly.

OATS—Prices have materially improved under the American demand recently setting in, late sales for present and future delivery have been at 40c to 4.c.

BARLEY.—A general improvement may be noted, but as there are no offerings, quotations are mostly nominal.

PORK.—All grades have been in very trifling demand through the week—the enquiry that existed has subsided, and while holders do not offer any abatement in prices, shippers are content to await the opening of navigation before filling any further orders.—Lard and Culmeats have been equally dull—next week after the holidays will probably seesome improvement in the demand.

and Culmeats have been equally dun-next week after the holidays will probably seesome improvement in the demand.

BUTTER—The transactions ouring the week have been very limited, and prices are a turn weaker, a few sales having been made at low prices to close consignments, holders however are not generally pressing deeming present prices sufficiently low to induce a clearance of the market when the fishery vessels begin to arrive. With regard to the future prospects of butter in the English market during the coming season, an extract from a letter from a large importing house in Liverpool, lately received by a leading house in the trade here, speaks for itself so forcibly that we make no comment. "Notwithstanding the severe weather "buyers have it all their own way, and will only touch "at low prices. Holders are determined sellers, the "season being nearly over so prices are most irregular, "no reasonable offer is refused to close accounts. The "Canadian butter of this year must be of better "quality, or it will have to go at grease prices. Every-body here is disgusted with the trade, and will only have it on their own terms."

Ashes.—Pots have advanced again the last day or two. Pearls remain quiet and nuchanged.
