

from the threat or use of force, and second, a Swiss proposal for the establishment of an institutional European system for the peaceful settlement of disputes which may arise amongst participating states.

As mentioned earlier, it is as yet unclear as to what form the final documents will take and at what level they will be formally approved or endorsed. Much depends on the progress achieved in the other "baskets", particularly basket III (human contacts) to which the Western countries have attached a great deal of importance.
