The style in Sashes. The return of the sash or girdle knot-ted at one side is welcomed by arlistic women who are fond of arranging, by pinning or tying, their own walst wear, and who are weary of the made-up bow sash. Soft, wide ribbons and crepe de chine are most useful for this pur-pose, and those with fringed ends are still worn. The very soft makes of vel-vet look pretty, but they must be tided with care (always in the same-place), or the crease will be apparent. For such a purpose a really good soft make of wide ribbon will stand the most work. Personal Mention. Age (if child's or miss' pattern)...... Age (if child's or miss' pattern)...... sincerity and moral worth. Men will no longer tolerate pulpit platitudes. Titles, words and theological phrases will not impress men now, for this is a democratic age. Summed up, the power of the preacher is the power of a brother among his brethren. "In his social capacity, a minister should be resourceful and inventive. Get the men and the women will come. And while a pastor should not be a molly coddle neither should he molly coddle neither should he be an entertainer; not too talkative but still not a 'stick.'
