The Captain of the Kansas By LOUIS TRACY.

(Adapted according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year nineteen hundred and seven, by McLeod & Allan, at the Department of Agriculture.)

(Continued.) Suarez, somewhat weak from his knock on the head, over night, was not equal to the strain of continued exertion, so Elsie and Gray took two cans each, and allowed their companion to rest.

It was well for Elsie that she had learned her skill at tennis. Even so, she feared that she could never hold out against the sustained stress of that pull across the bay. The heavy boat, intended to be rowed by six men, had the added burden of four canoes. It was back-breaking work, but she neither faltered nor sighed until Suarez said:

"Let me take your place now, senora. In ten minutes we shall be at the mouth of the creek, though heaven only knows how we shall find it."

He did not exaggerate in this expression of his fear. Time and again they heaved the above, only to find the tidal swell breaking heavily on the rocks. The lights of the Kansas, fully three miles away, were dimming, and they were in the neighborhood of the place where Courtney had had his accident.

The least divergence from the line boat. The men were in the line boat, given by the position of the ship meant a difference of hundreds of yards at such a distance, and there was an ominous lightning of the stars, when Gray hit on the idea that the powerful current, which probably carried them a good deal southward of the point they were aiming at, would be a help to them.

Elise obeyed with a nimbleness and certainty that were amazing. The American fired three more shots before he was satisfied that the canoe was unharmed and not out of sight. They were now leaving the pandemonium behind, and Elsie, bethinking herself of the dog, freed him from that most objectionable muzzle. Joey forthwith awoke the welkin with his uproar, but, although the boat and emptied the revolver at what he took to be the black heads of the swimmers.

Daily Fashion Hint for Times Readers

THE VOGUE OF OGSTRICH.

It is the fashion of the winter to trim those large and choppy bow shapes with a single ostrich plume so large in size and rich in quality as to form the only trimming on the hat, with the exception of a ribbon or velvet rosette being the only other touch. Usually this is placed a little to the right of the center front, like that in the picture, spreading luxuriantly over the front and left side of the crown and drooping its long willow end off the left brim well toward the back.

Wonderful Cold Cure

THE MARKET FOR DAIRY PRODUCE

Sale of New Zealand Butter in England for Canadian Account May Raise Values.

(Montreal Witness.) Some more of that New Zealand butter that was purchased for the account of the Canadian dealer, has been sold in England. There is a good profit on the turnover, for the Canadian dealer, and by disposing of his holdings on the other side, a large proportion of the risk of handling the stock is eliminated; but the influence which have been held over the market here for some time, are, in this way, entirely reversed.

When the proposal to import colonial butter was first advanced, it was assumed that the engagement of any quantity of this produce would have a weakening effect on the Canadian market. The engagements were made in due time without any very noticeable decline in values taking place, and now that the tendency of the owners of the butter seems to be to take a profit in England, the strength of the situation here should be materially increased. This may come within a few days, but so far values have fluctuated within very narrow limits, the disposal on outside markets of the supplies which were destined to meet the local deficiency, apparently having very little effect on prices.

In the local jobbing trade the price that buyers will pay has advanced about 1-2c since last week, and choice fall creamery is selling at 28 1/2c to 29c. The offering of fresh made butter, both creamery and dairy, are light, and quotations range from 26 1/2c to 27c per pound for the former, and 23 1/2c to 24c for the latter. These values are steady at 13 1/2c for finest September Western, white, and 13 1/2c for the same makes of colored. The inquiry from the English market is light, but the holdings here are not heavy enough to cause any uneasiness on that score.

MODERN MEDICINES

No sane mother would wish her child treated under the conditions of medicine or surgery of half a century ago. Why then should she give her little one the old-fashioned medicines of half a century ago, which more likely than not contain poisonous opiates that cannot cure the ailment, but merely drive it into temporary insensibility. Baby's Own Tablets is a modern medicine, prepared with all the care and skill of modern medical science. And the mother who gives this medicine to her child has the guarantee of a government analyst that it does not contain one particle of opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. This medicine cures all the minor ailments of little ones, and makes baby a healthy, laughing, happy child. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It is said that Dr. J. V. Anglin is mentioned as the possible successor of Dr. Thomas Walker as medical officer of the 2nd Fusiliers. Major Fred Hart, the senior major, has resigned. Major Magee as next in promotion will be promoted. Captain Perley, of D. Co., may be appointed junior major, and in the event of a new captain being appointed it is said that Colonel M. B. Edwards is said to be considering his resignation this year, and in that event Capt. McAvity may be appointed to the command.

One of the stewards of the C. P. R. steamer Montanna fell twenty feet in the hold of the steamer yesterday morning, breaking his right arm. While walking along the deck with some duties he slipped and landed on some freight in the hold. He was brought out by some of the sailors who carried him to the surgeon's room, where the ship's doctor attended him.

There was a good attendance at St. Luke's church school last evening when Rev. H. E. Trummer, of Roxbury, gave an illustrated lecture on the cathedral towns of England, under the auspices of the St. John's People's Association. Mr. Trummer took his hearers on an imaginary journey through England, beginning at the north with Newcastle and Carlisle and visiting Chester, Canterbury and other towns, also showing illustrated slides. The lecture was much appreciated and a vote of thanks to the Y. P. A. and to Mr. Trummer was passed.

Two new locomotives on the I. C. R. from the shops at Moncton are now in commission. They are said to be equal to any imported from abroad or upper Canada.
