

FOR THE CHRONICLE.
THE LONDON SUNDAY TRUTH.
On the offering of a wild disengaged brain, need'd by audacious children, resident in the High Council of Infidelity, of Pandemonium.

I am the Mighty One,—the plain,
1 millions own, of fighting men.

Now, son, I'll prove them all will
Dethrone the Prince whom you esteem;
Or have them daily executed?—
This scroll, prophetic scroll, my plan,
To rule and reign over man.
Should I beat the French and English, too,
The world would tremble at my name.
I am my mighty host;—no other
Can move me from my seat;—
And clear Concanaphile through I
P'll plant my glorious peace tree,
And rule supreme, ov'rev'rywhere.
All Palestine is given to me,
Och! which I have not had the key
For amount of land, to leave to Jew,
Innumorous sons, they can't reform,
The richest mines on earth I'll over,
From the rock to the gold mine,
The Mediterranean, I'll command,
The ocean, and all the land
Within Europe's borders,
I'll subjugate and bring to order,
A nation shall bend her knee,
In love subjected to me.
Or have her spoors dash'd to stone,
As I have dash'd the bones of others,
And all the ides from sea to sea,
Shall lowly bow'd and bow to me!
I'll hold the whole wide world with ease,
To Greek Church Gods just as I please.
I'll grant them all their wishes,
Who have on earth creid their rule,
I'll regulate Omnipotency to reign,
I'll rule all Earth's domain!

I'll bind my walls, deep, thick and high
Then all my treasures safe shall lie.
My chosen ones standing by bold,
I'll have a golden scroll, gold bold,
Nor will I fear what devils can do,
While I my sacred plans pursue,
I am the One, undivide, no doubt,
To overthrow the world throughout;
And all the ides from sea to sea,
Of whom, on Earth, I am the Head,
This sacred scroll! I'll early keep
Under my pillow, while I sleep.

[Exit Emperor, poor dog.]

As! haughty, proud, vain boasting, tyrannous words of folly, a creature of a day, how componyly programmed, than those appear before the sun, the eye of scholars—when, now holds in ample reprobation, his highly inflated embattled Hosts, swining his scimitar, orders to burn the foes of Zion and the peace-disturbers of the world. Who dares to stand in his distain'd way?—and who will?—and will stand for slaughter in days of doom? J. R. L.
Lansdale, August 22, 1855.

CARMEN PACIFICUM.

A PELLICLE SONG.

Gladstone, and Graham and Sidney,
Gladstone, and Graham and Sidney.

Declares that War
Has become quite a bore

To men of their peaceable kidney.

Says Gladstone one Jealous layman,
Says Gladstone our Jesus laymen,

England's wrong, Russia's right,
And we do call to fight;

Except that of the wicked highwaymen.

Says Gladstone, that veteran schemer,

England's wrong, Russia's right,

We should best off,

We should call back our fleet,

Not leave out them big, fat, scum.

Says Gladstone, that peaceful young hero,

Says Gladstone, that peaceful young hero,

The Russ is the Turk,

We have done for each Indian Amer. O.

Says three jovial peccadilloes in chorus,

Says three jovial peccadilloes in chorus,

When we're out, we're out,

It's all right, no doubt.

For we made it quite mild and decent.

But the People are calling for vigour,

But the People are calling for vigour,

And all ill will stems out;

As a War made in earnest;

So PEACE AT ALL PRICES is our desire.—

[Music.]

THE SABINE AND THE CROCODILUS.—Campbell,

the author, being a real Sabine, when he saw this a dissertation, he bettered it.

His two portions would have dissipated him from it, if they had recently seen several sharks; but being partly intoxicated, he would not have let their persecutions,

Nearly as soon as he was in the water, his comrades, who were swimming, had swum him around,

and he was about to drown, when his comrade

had swum him around, and he was about to drown,

and he was about to drown, when his comrade

had swum him around, and he was about to drown,

and he was about to drown, when his comrade

had swum him around, and he was about to drown,

and he was about to drown, when his comrade
