The young people were accompanied by a violinist, and dancing was the chief amusement during the evening, which for its gaiety will long be remembered. KINGSTON, KINGS CO.

MARCH 4.—The 25th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Pickett was the occasion of a large and pleasant gathering of their friends at their residence last Friday evening. After a much needed supper there were congratulatory speeches, the recitor, Rev. Mr. Wainwright, thanking the guests for their generous gifts. Among them was a novel in the country—a bottle of pure maple honey made by master Adino Gorham on February 27. The gathering was a very pleasant affair, and if Mr. and Mrs. Pickett's days are as long and happy as their friends wish them, they will surely celebrate their golden wedding. J. O. C.

MARCH 5.—On Thursday evening of last week, the Misses Webster, of Riverside cottage, entertained a large number of their friends. "We'll not go home until morning" seemed the tacit understanding. It would be difficult to find more graceful entertainers than Mrs. Webster and her daughters.

Among the arrivals in town this week, I notice Mr. R. C. Barnes, of Harper & Webster, Mr. Jas. Irving, who has returned from the West, Mr. J. V. Bourque, of Amherst; Dr. Bourque, of Moncton, and Messrs. Phinney, Harrington and Stevens, M. P. P's.

The dining room was cleared and utilized for dancing, which was kept up till two. At 12 o'clock light refreshments were served. SACKVILLE.

[Progress is for sale in Sackville at C. H. Moore's bookstore.]

MARCH 5.—The literary entertainment of last evening was one of the most entertaining affairs of the season. The president, Mr. Powell, was right there, his opening address reaching all the way from the creation right up to the evening of the 4th of March, 1880. Next on the programme was the "Mocking Bird," beautifully rendered by Messrs. McDonald, Snowden, Dolson and Miss Estabrook.

Then the debaters gave very much excited over the more useful the girl of the present generation? the girl of the past generation?

The unmarred men, Mr. Patterson and Mr. Dowell for the present girl, Mr. McDougall and Mr. Dixon for the girl of our grandmothers' period. Mr. Patterson's remark that he was not a ladies' man was received with many a chuckle, sigh and groan by his luckless friends. Our worthy parson seemed so unsettled in his remarks that he not only came out undecided himself, but unsettled most of his hearers. The debate was warm and decided in favor of the girl of the period.

Cleaning of Paints, Carpets, Marble, etc. Harmless to Hands; makes a big Lather. SUCCESSFUL PAINTERS. The Men Who Make St. John Houses Presentable Outside and Inside. Cornelius Gallagher, who has been a painter in this city for 20 years, is again to the front this season renewing his acquaintance with his patrons. He is ready for all kinds of work in his line and his assurance is sufficient guarantee that it will be well done. R. J. Wilkins and G. E. Sands announce a co-partnership and their readiness to do all kinds of painting, glazing and decoration at reasonable prices and with promptness. Their attractive notices appear in different parts of this issue and will attract the attention of householders and landlords. It is almost superfluous to call attention to the card of Robert Barbour & Son printed elsewhere. The design and the engraving is to be admired and will do its work. Messrs. Barbour are known as artistic and successful painters, with long experience and hosts of patrons and friends. Their engraving is a fair sample of the work of PROGRESS Engraving Bureau. The readers of PROGRESS are too well acquainted with that energetic and enterprising decorator and painter, A. G. Staples, to need any further endorsement of his work.

PEN PICTURES OF FAMOUS WOMEN.

Interesting Descriptions of a Few Who Have Been Successful. Miss Anne Whitney, the Boston sculptor, has a noble head and features of ideal beauty, on which time seems to make no more impression than on sculptured marble. Mrs. Margaret Deland, whom everybody knows through "John Ward, Preacher," was in New York no long time ago. Her hair is dark and her eyes are bright, and she looks thoroughly healthy and wholesome. Her skin is fresh, and she is uncommonly pretty and charming. Her voice is low and very pleasantly clear in its tone. Mrs. Ednah D. Cheney is fine and scholarly in every impression one takes of her. Mrs. Mary A. Livermore is a large woman of strong personality, the gracious dignity and magnetism of whose presence is felt by every one who comes before her. Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton is rather below middle height, of matronly figure, with a pleasant voice and dark hair. Grace Greenwood has rather large features and very dark hair, which she combs down over her ears in the fashion of a generation ago. She is rather stout, but retains her literary activity. Lucy Larcom is somewhat passed middle age and her hair is fast turning gray. Maud Howe Eliot, Julia Ward Howe's daughter, retains the beauty over which before her marriage artists were enthusiastic. Her complexion is very fair, and delicate and her features clear cut, sensitive and refined.—Mail and Express.

What He Saw. He wore a foreign air and a pair of trousers whose loud pattern could be plainly heard above the rumbling of the incoming train. "It's an unexpected pleasure to meet you," said a friend to the man with the loud pants, as they bounded up the steps of Broad street station. "Thought you were dead—been away?" "Yes; been in Europe all summer, and just got back." "That so! Well, did you see any icebergs coming over?" "Well, I should say we did." "Big ones?" "You bet, and 'way out, hundreds of miles from land. The last one we saw was a lalla. With the aid of a glass you could read the advertisements on it."
