There is only one way to advertise and that is to hammer your name, your location and your business so persistso thoroughly into people's heads that if they walk in their sleep they will constantly turn their steps toward your store. The newspaper is your friend in spite of criticism. It your friend in spite of criticism. It helps build up the community that supports you. When the day comes that the newspapers are dead, the people are on the edge of the grave with nobody to write the epitaph.

It is impossible to make an exact estimate of the coal wasted in Canada each year through the carting away of unconsumed carbon, but it is trenendous. A glance at any ash heap in the spring, after the melting snow or spring rains have washed away ashor spring rains have washed away ashes from the cinders, will show much coal unconsumed. The most careful furnace or range firing will not overcome the loss. Coal which lies against the metal firepot only burns on one side, and, when shaken out, has not done its full duty. This coal when separated from the as is again available. All ashes should, therefore, be well sifted to secure this fuel.

The paying of our war expenses great as they are, is not troubling us in timber, mineral and virgin soil re-We have in abundance what the world must have, and all we need willing workers to develop these. The only anxiety left us is our imediate fuel problem. The memory of last winter's discomforts sends shivers through very many. Some of our wealthy friends had to sit in their homes with their overcoats and mitts on. It is quite pleasant, therefore, to hear that there are some signs of an open winter ahead of us. A writer in The Weekly Sun predicts a mild winter and gives good reasons for hope that it will come. He finds from his weather records that mild winters run about ten years apart and one is now due. We hope this winter will follow the rule. Should such be the case, one-third less fuel will be required, so nature will help us out and we shall all be thankful.—Ex. shivers through very many. A CARTOON IN WORDS

By Peter McArthur, in The Globe
Once upon a time, in a happy and peaceful kingdom, a bandit broke loose. He started on an orgy of abominations. Pillage was his pastime, murder the occupation of his lighter moments and frightfulness the one passion of his life.

In due time an outraged community rounded him up, disarmed him and brought him to justice. Seeing that his taste in neckties was not to be consulted in the approaching ceremonles, the bandit exclaimed:

"O. King, if you would only pause long enough to read my will and see the wonderful things I propose to do with my wealth and power you would relax the severity of your sentence."

"You interest me," said the King, with a suavity that would have done credit to the Hon. Arthur Balfour. "I shall be very glad indeed to read and consider your testamentary beneficence, but, as you are doubtless aware, it is customary in all civilized countries to defer reading the will until after the funeral."

Whereupon the King turned down his thumb as a signal to the Lord High Executioner to get busy.

Moral:

We shall have leisure later on to consider the possible virtues and good intentions of Germany.

The Government ought not to over-By Peter McArthur, in The Globe

The Government ought not to overlook the opportunities for placing on farms in Western Ontario soldiers who are inclined to go upon the land. There will be many who have no wish to go to the Canadian West who would be pleased with a chance in this province.

There is a man in Bozeman, Mont., who will probably go through life bewailing the injustice of the draft board that certified him for service, despite the fact that he presented a letter written by his wife to prove that he had a dependent family. Here is the letter:—"Dear United States Army:—My husband ast me to write a recommend that he supports his family. He cannot read so don't tell him. Jus' take him. He ain't no good to me. He ain't done nothing but pluy a fiddle and drink lemon essence since I married him, eight years ago, and I got to feed eight kids of his. Maybe you can get him to carry a gun. He's good on squirrels and eatin'. Take him and welcum. I need the grub and his bed for the kids. Don't tell him this, but take him." There is a man in Bozeman, Mont.,
