The Woman-Haters

By JOSEPH C. LINCOLN, author of "Cy Whittaker's Place," "The Depot Master," etc. 12mo. Cloth, $1.25 net.

The "woman-haters" are a lighthouse keeper, with a mysterious secret, and an equally inscrutable young man from the city, who is washed ashore and takes up his abode in the lighthouse. A nearby bungalow is the cause of many disturbances to their solitude, for there are dwelling an exceedingly attractive girl and an elderly housekeeper. What happens to the "woman-haters" is told with the same humor that enlivened "Cap'n Eri" and "Cy Whittaker's Place."

"For downright good humor, with plenty of sea and shore talk in the never-to-be-exhausted New England vernacular, and a double love story, with nothing in it permitting the Howard Chandler Christy style of pictures, Joseph C. Lincoln's 'Woman-Haters' is heartily recommended. It will render cheerful many a dismal afternoon."

—Syracuse Post-Standard.

"Joseph C. Lincoln excels as a delineator of types found in the simple, characteristically crafty and perfectly self-satisfied folk of the New England coast. In 'The Woman-Haters' he repeats previous successes in this field."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

"Joseph C. Lincoln is never at a loss for a picturesque Cape Codder as a center-piece to his stories of that district, and his latest book, 'The Woman-Haters,' features one whose grim humor and pointed sailor talk is only equaled by the uproariously funny situations in which he figures."—Springfield Republican.

"It has no episode that will bring a tear to the eye, but the person who can read it with a straight face and without occasional outbursts of laughter must be wholly devoid of a sense of humor."

—Boston Herald.
