

Miscellaneous.

A WORD OF ADVICE.

BY ALICE CARY.

My little lad, I will tell to you
What things to do, what not to do.
If you want to grow up fine—
Arise when the day is breaking sweet,
And earn your breakfast before you eat,
And go to your bed at nine.

When you are called to meals, take care
To wash your face and comb your hair;
As neither slur nor shirk,
But have your hat upon its peg,
Your stockings straight upon your leg
And don't make eating work.

Say "Thank you," when you take your bread,
Or smile at least, and nod your head,
And for coffee and tea, likewise,
Or slice of toast, or Johnny-cake—
In short, for any thing you take;
And "be excused" if you rise.

Don't talk, and laugh, and make rude jokes,
In presence of the older folks;
But speak both little and low;
And don't get angry, and don't swear
At any body, nor anywhere—
No matter where you go!

Whenever you know a thing is right,
Go and do it with main and might,
Nor let one murmur fall,
For duty makes as stern a claim
As if an angel called your name,
And all men heard the call.

IS DEATH BY GUILLOTINING INSTANTANEOUS?

The execution of Tropman has revived a discussion in the Paris papers as to whether death by guillotining is instantaneous. A Dr. Pinel has written a letter to the Gazette in which he expresses an opinion that not only is death delayed, but it is possible that it may be postponed for two hours or even more, the head remaining not only alive, but capable of sensation during the interval. The London Globe, in referring to this expression of opinion, says:

"The physiological facts are simple. The head is the animal proper, the body is but an appendage for the purpose of ministering to its sustenance and fulfilling its behests. The trunk is an apparatus constructed to act as the reservoir of food. It stands to the head exactly in the same relation as a railway tender to the locomotive engine with which it is connected. It contains the storehouse of fuel, and other necessities; the digestive organs to appropriate and prepare the supplies contributed from without; the lungs to expose the blood to the air for the purposes of oxygenation and decarbonization; the heart to circulate the blood which, as everybody knows, is the vehicle of life and food. These organs are essential to life, but only because they minister to the head in common with the rest of the body, the materials which it requires. The head can live after it is separated from the body just so long as the last supply of nutriment will suffice for it. The extremities, as too many unfortunately find by experience, are dispensable. The head is the seat of life, and this life is only indirectly terminated by cutting of the supplies, or, in other words, by starving to death, when the body is decapitated. The consequence is very horrible, but it should be understood and ought certainly to have some effect on humane people in determining whether they really mean to inflict the unparalleled agony of such a death on the victim of justice. Imagine for one moment the terror of being conscious all through the fall of the axe, which, from what we know of dreams, may seem an age, and afterwards until faintness supervene. It is true, as Dr. Pinel points out, that the blood which flows from the head comes chiefly from the great vessels of the neck, not from those of the brain. Moreover, the smaller arteries contract and retain the blood, and even continue to propel it by their own contractile force, so that the brain, except by consciousness and pain, is not aware of the loss of the body until the last particle of blood which has entered its arteries has been forced through the brain and nourished. It is even possible that the wound quickens the sensory nervous system to increased action for the time. The inability to move is of course no proof of incapacity for feeling. The fixed points of most of the muscles are removed by the severance from the body. It is possible that the eyes may move even unconsciously, but this is doubtful. It is, however, more than probable that the poor wretch sees, hears, and retains all the faculties of special sense in their acuteness for an awful moment of uncertain duration after his execution."

CONSUMPTION NOT INCURABLE.

THE REV. WM. HARRISON, late member of the Black River Annual Conference, having himself been entirely cured of Consumption by an English physician, after his case had been pronounced hopeless by several eminent physicians of Central New York, during the past six years has administered, with most extraordinary success, the same remedy to more than 10,000 persons suffering in the various stages of CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, & CATARRH.

A MOST EXTRAORDINARY CASE!
The following statement of a most extraordinary case ought to convince the most skeptical of the efficacy and power of this most remarkable remedy for lung diseases:

Euclid, N. Y. Jan. 2, 1867.
Rev. W. HARRISON. Dear Sir—For the sake of the vast numbers of people who are suffering and dying with that dire scourge of our land, Consumption, (trusting they may be induced, by reading these lines, to partake of your great remedies and "be healed,") I offer this testimonial as to the extraordinary merits of your medicines:

For many years I was troubled with Catarrh, which finally culminated in a settled cough. My lungs had several spells of profuse bleeding, and soon became very badly diseased. I faithfully used one kind after another of various advertised nostrums, and at different times took treatment from some of the best physicians in our section, but instead of receiving any permanent benefit I continued to grow worse, and was evidently sinking into a helpless decline. I suffered greatly from night-sweats, and with a severe cough, excruciating pains in the lungs, cancer sore throat, coldness of the feet and hands, disordered and morbid condition of the stomach and bowels, and excessive weakness. I expectorated terribly. The last stage of consumption was apparently reached. With but little hope (or life) remaining, I commenced using your remedies, March 1st, and by the 15th of the following June I took the last dose of the seventh package, and had then become a well man. This was two years ago, and since then I have worked steadily on a farm, all the time in good health. My age is 62, and my present weight 150 pounds.

Very gratefully yours,
L. F. WISEMAN.
Holly, Oakland Co., Mich., Jan. 10, 1868.

Dr. R. E. NETTOS & Co. Gentlemen—I wish to express my sincere thanks to you for the great benefit Rev. Mr. Harrison's Consumptive Remedy has done for me. In the spring of 1867 I took a severe cold; I doctored for it, but to no effect; my case became more and more dangerous, attended with a severe cough, copious expectoration, and dreadful night-sweats. I became much emaciated; the best physicians of our place were in attendance, but they soon despaired of my recovery and stopped prescribing for me. They pronounced my complaint quick consumption, and said I could live but a short time. At this critical period a friend from the State of New York came to visit me, and as he had been in a like situation, he could speak from experience. He recommended your invaluable Remedy; it was soon procured, and I am happy to say before one package was taken, I felt its beneficial effects and by the time I had taken four packages I felt positive I was a well man. I desire this statement to go before the public in order that all those who are similarly afflicted may be relieved.

We have many testimonials of most positive character, from reliable parties who have been cured by the use of this medicine. By permission we refer to the following gentlemen, namely:
