CANADA TO GREAT BRITAIN. An original poem by Alice Pyne Mc-Davitt, Foxboro, Ont.

In splendid isolation. The Isles of Britain stand, Around the wild gulls flying, Her ships go from her harbors, To every port of earth, Her commerce and her merchant Are proven things of worth.

Oh! Royal Isles of Britain, Washed by sea's clamorou Beyond your cliffs are scattered And God hath sent His storms

The waves do ever call, Your sons have answering, wandere

From cot and stately hall. And learning New World's method Have formed new ties that bind, And Britain's yet their motherland Though New-World's friends

And Britain's sons are steadfast, No German hand shall rule, The Royal Isles of Britain

For British sons shall foil The deep-laid plans of statesmen From William's tax-ruled sod; With Austria's haughty people Shall call-in vain, for God.

To aid their Imp-led soldiers. To crush Great Britain's pride. To float their flags o'er Belgium: And our Colonies deride. For we are one with Britain, Those splendid Isles afar; We-Britain's sons are British,

To us those Isles are dear.

Our manhood has been offered. Our mothers urge their sons, To grapple with the foe-men. Till crushed shall be the Hun. nd to the God of battles, Who has aided us of yore, We plead-free men-for freedo Lead us, as oft before.

and when our foes are conquered. Teach us to wisely guide, Let not the aliens fill our land, Beneath our banners hide. To print their barbarous schisms, Their Anarchism spread, But 'neath the stately maple May our children first be fed.

Let not our own go hungry, Train all to honest work, and may our children doubly scorn The rich and poor-who shirk. May the people all go forward Who England's language speak; And ever kneel in reverence, Thy Spirit-Lord-to seek.
