TRANSPORT SUNK;

South African Native Laborers Lost on Steamer Mendi

SUNK IN COLLISION With Another Vessel in English Channel

London, March, 9—The British transport Mendi, carrying South African native laborers, was sunk af-ter a collision on February 21 and 625 persons lost their lives.

Ten of the persons lost were Eucopeans, according to the announcement made to-day to the South Atrican Parliament by Gen. Louis Botha, the Premier. The collision occurred off the Isle of Wight. The official announcement says:

"Premier Botha stated to the South African parliament to-day that the transport Mendi, carrying the last batch of South African native laborers' contingent (the rest of whom were landed safely in France) collided with another route from England to Havre and sank in twenty-five minutes. The collision occurred off the Isle of Wight on February 21. The essearch light could not penetrate the fog, but the survivors were rescued by passing vessels. Twelve European officers and 191 natives were saved. Ten Europeans and 615 natives were lost. Difficulty in obtaining authentic information caused the delay in making the aninformation

The Mendi was a British steamer of 4,230 tons gross, built in Glasgow in 1905, and owned by the Elder-Dempster Company.

Based on current dividend rates and earnings, the copper stocks are cheap. Most of the large producers will have surplus accounts at the end of 1917 sufficient to pay current dividends for three or four years. There is today no one group of securities in which the protection of the investment is so great in measurable values, or on which the yield is so high as in the securities of the leading copper producers.
