THE WORST OF A COLD

Is how suddenly it comes. No time to hurry to the drug store, croup develops, the lungs are affected with pneumonia or tuberculosis, and it's too late. Keep Catarrhozone on hand—it kills colds instantly. Something magical about the way it cures Catarrh and Bronchitis. Catarrhod gone is the best remedy because it cures in nature's way; it heals, cores in natures way, it nears, soothes and restores permanently. Carry a Catarrhozone inhaler on your pocket, use it occasionally and you'll never catch cold—that's worth remembering.

BAR TO PROGRESS.

"Busy" Business Man Sized Up and Blind Apostleship to Strenuosity Roundly Scared.

Among the young men of to-day who are looking for opportunities for launching into successful careers it may be said that the great majority have before their eyes as an example for emulation the typical busy business man. In this statement I want to make a marked distinction between the business man and the business man who is chronleally of the busy type. For in chronically of the busy type. For in my opinion there is no type in exist-ence who in all his relations with the world is so absolutely a bar to progress of the human race, writes John A. Howland,

Not infrequently this busy business man is not busy. He is emotional, excitable, and is borrowing troubles and tangles. He thinks he is most strenuous, when as a matter of fact he had lost merely his self-control. Personally he may rush madly by train and cab to his office, dash to the express elevator, bounce into his office and be an hour recovering from his emotionalism. But this man in his own estimation is one of the busiest of men, and the busy feeling grows upon him until it becomes a condition of fixed until it becomes a condition of fixed mental aberration in a passive state, or until it as violently breaks out into a certain business hydrophobia.

Manifestly neither the business man nor the busy business man is able, willing, or called upon to receive every person who asks him for a portion of his time. But in my experience of this busy business man, he squanders more time in busying himself, mentally and physically, than he would need to give every person a hearing who might call upon him in the routine day. This man who is mentally aberrated with the ingrowing idea of his busy condition, and who yet is more or less passive under the spell, is one of the passive under the speil, is one of the most irritating of the types. He has the demeanor of gentleness, perhaps. He can smile, sometimes, vaguely in a far off manner. But business abstrac-tion is buried into his eyes until you may feel that using them with hypno-tic intent he might induce you to be-come a packing box or a block of blank sock certificates.

His most maddening aspect is shown when you have approached him with something which is not business, thank God, but which is so much worther that he is compelled to reliterate almost incoherently that he "would be delighted to ake the matter up with you -only-you know I am so-so fright-fully busy, always, that I-I-" and you stammering per onal pronoun. His whole bearing, so far as it is sane, is that he is regarding his busy business as he regards an incurable disease from which he is doomed always to suffer— as perhaps he must.

This same caller appearing before that other type of violently busy man logically may expect almost any kind of explosive negative, and at the best having it tempered with the querulous reiteration of his busy condition amounting to more than an obsession.

This monomaniacal representative of business in its busies; garb is the one man in business who has given to the term "business" much of its hard, uncalculating immobility and narrowness. His outlook on life is abnormal to the last degree. He has yoked himself fast to the grim specter. Time, and he goes protestingly toward any object in life which would halt his partner.

Viewed from any side this overbusied man wears the standing and in-much dreaded Bright's D.sease, by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For two years," says Mr. Young, in relating his experience, "I was afficied with Beight's D.sease. The dostors told me I could get no relief. My urine was very dark and I lost considerable blood, making me so weak I could searcely stand. I also used many medicines without gretting relief. delible confession of his inefficiency. The man feeling the pressure of his business day after day is unfitted for the exactions of his work. He is a quart cup in the gauger's plant where only the gallon measure is of economical use. He needs make too many trips from the cask to the barrel in render-ing his service. He is in use in many places, however, and in the process he is inimical to good business in a great measure and wholly so to all else in measure and wholly so to all else in life.

Yet this is the type of business man which with so many observers of the business world naturally attracts the attentions. We have become too much the blind apostles of strenuosity. It no longer interests us that a man with calm exterior and an inward confidence in himself moves with even certainty. in himself moves with even certainty to a legitimate end. The limelight and the grand stand are the properties necessary to attract in his accomplishments. Without this portable back-Without this portable ground for attainment, the world does not care to look, to say nothing of learning.

"I have been putting in a month of hard work, but I'll be able to look over the top of it soon," is an expression creditable to a man who has upon his shoulders the success of a business. "I am so busy I don't know which way to turn," is a much commoner and excited expression, however, and when you hear it put it down that it comes from a weak nature confessing from a weak nature confessin its inefficiency.

Properly Introduced.

Margaret is a well brought up little girl who has some knowledge of etiquette. She had been taken to a house where there is a large dog.

"Don't go near the dog, Margaret," said her mother. "He doesn't know you, and might bite."

But that did not suit Margaret, and she knew how to arrange matters. Going to the dog, she made a little curtesy, such as she has been taught to make at dancing school, and said politely:

to make at dancing school, and said politely:
"Doggie, I am Margaret Brown."
Then, the introduction having been made and the dog having no excuse for not knowing her, Margaret walked up and patted him, while he wagged his tail with much graciousness.

Child Marriages In India.

Child Marriages In India.

Recently at the Caxton Hall, Westminster, Sirdar Arjan Singh addressed the East Indian Association on "Early Marriages In India." Sidar Arjan Singh said in India people married in childhood, sometimes in infancy, and noi rarely the promise of marriage was made before birth. If a girl was unmarried at twelve she was regarded at disgraced and her father as a sinner About 400,000 children in every five years were married when under five years of age. Many girls then married became widows while still bables of small children, and the misery of widowhood in India was inconceivable to the European mind.—London Post.

The Pandora is the only range with a reservoir stamped in one single piece of steel and enamelled. It is the only reservoir without seams, rivets or places to catch dirt. It has no sharp angles. All angles are made with rounding curves, and the whole reservoir is beautifully enamelled.

McClary's are the only range makers in Canada with a plant for making enamelled steel reservoirs, and that is why the Pandora is the only range that has a one-piece reservoir.

THE FOUR D'S.

Ciurles Spurgeon once said that there are three there are three great enemies to man—"dirt, debt and the devil." He might have added one more D and included dyspepsia. The evil results of this disease could hardly be exaggrated. Its effects are felt in mind and heady and are as far reaching as and body, and are as far reaching as the effects of the curse that was laid on the Jackdaw of Rheims which was cursed in eating and drinking and cursed in eating and drinking and sleeping, in standing and sitting and lying." The good effects of Dr. Picroe's Golden Medical Discovery are most marked in aggravated and chronic cases of dyspepsia. It enables the stomach glands to secrete the necessary quantity of digestive fluids, and this at once relieves that craving or grawing sensation so comcraving or gnawing sensation so common to certain forms of indigestion, It tones and regulates the stomach, invigorates the torpid liver and gives the blood making glands keen assimilative power. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures ninety-eight per cent, of those who use it. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are superior to all other laxative medicines when the bowels are obstructed.

"Alcohol has a certain position as a medicine," said Sir Frederick Treves recently, "but in the last twenty-five years its use by the medical profession has steadily diminished. It is often said that alcohol is an excellent appetizer, but the appetite does not need artificial stimulation. If the body wants feeding, it demands food.
