I have never tasted a drop of liquor in my life.'

That is age of twenty-one I never saw it, and after that I did not care to take on the habit.'
That is all there is in it. If the boys of the country are not exposed to the infernalism, the men are very sure not to be. This man and his schoolmates were saved from rum by the fact that they could not get it until they were old enough to know better. Few men are drunkards who know not the poison till after they are twenty-one. It is the youth the whiskey and beer men want.—North American Review.

He may not be dangerously sick to day, and to morrow be in his shrond. Most physicians, like myself, dread being called upon to take charge of a sick man who is a habitual beer drinker.'

Dr. W. T. Ridenour, surgeon in the army, fourteen years practising physician, lecturer in Toledo medical schools says:—
I have no doubt the rapid spread of Bright's disease is largely due to beer drinker. I have always believed that Bayard Taylor feld a victim to the German beer that he praised so highly. He died of Bright's disease at 50, when he should have lived, with his constitution, to a green old age. He weld just as beer drinkers are going all the time and everywhere.

We could fill pages with similar testimony. The only trouble is to know where to stop.

The sum of the testimony is that these round, fleshy, florid fellows are half dead, and from any little injury or illness liable any lime to be wholly so.

The best argument I have found in Maine for prohibition was by an editor of a paper in Portland, that was for political reasons middly opposed to it. I had conversation with him that ran something like this:

'Where were you born?'
'In a little village about sixty miles from Bangor.'
'Do you remember the condition of things in your village prior to prohibition?'
'Distinctly, There was a vest amount of drunkenness, and consequent disorder and poverty.'
'What was the effect of prohibition?'
'It shut up all the rum-shops, and practically banished liquor from the village. It became one of the most staglobe.'
'How long did you live in the village after prohibition?'
'Eleven years, or until I was twentyone years of age.'
'Then?'
'Then I went to Bangor.'
