Felt Wretched Until We Started To Take "Fruit-a-tives"

504 CHAMPLAIN ST., MONTREAL.
 "For two years, I was a miserable sufferer from Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. I had frequent Dizzy Spells, and when I took food, felt wretched and sleepy. I suffered from Rheumatism dreadfully, with pains in my back and joints, and my hands swollen. A friend advised "Fruit-a-tives" and from the outset, they did me good. After the first box, I felt I was getting well and I can truthfully say that "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that helped me". LOUIS LABRIE.

Kilburn News

Mr. and Mrs. Handford Grant gave a reception the evening of the 20th, the guests of honor being their son Murray L. Grant and bride. A pleasant evening was enjoyed. Shortly before lunch was served, James Stewart, in behalf of the assembled guests, presented the bride with a beautiful mahogany cabinet containing a set of Rogers 1847 silverware, as a slight token of the goodwill and best wishes of her friends in Kilburn.

Miss Millicent Inman of Edmuntston is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Inman for a few days.

Miss Olive Grant, who has been in charge of the Arthurette school, is spending the holidays at her home here.

Miss Bernice Giberson of Holmesville is visiting her sister, Mrs. Murray L. Grant this week.

Miss Lorraine Blue left on Friday for Debec Jet. to spend the holidays with her parents.

Miss Hazel Hallett, who is attending Frederickton Business College, arrived on Friday to spend the holidays at her home in Coronation. She was accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. Archie Bishop of Frederickton.

The concert given by the mission Band on Saturday evening was well attended and a good program was enjoyed by all, the little folk acquitting themselves in a very creditable way.

MOTION PICTURE FILMS.

How They Are "Edited" Before They Reach the Public Eye.

After a motion picture film has been developed and printed it is sent to the general manager or to the director to be "edited." Like an author's manuscript in the hands of an editor, it is shortened here and there, the captions altered, some parts entirely "cut" or deleted and the whole film dressed up to suit the ideas of the men closest in touch with the theater going public.

The editing takes place in the projection room, says the Popular Science Monthly, but the alterations-cutting the film and changing it-is done in the cutting and assembling room by men who do nothing else. Sometimes the men in the cutting room ("cutters," in the trade lingo) are so overwhelmed and confused with orders issued by the studio officials that they are compelled to ask for additional explanations. Needless to say this wastes much time.

By means of the phonograph, however, one motion picture company is eliminating this waste and "having" money. As the director watches a picture in the projection room he utters his editing orders into the transmitter of a dictating machine. The film is then sent back to the cutting room with the phonograph record.

A SUBMARINE BASE.

It is a Supply and Repair Station for Undersea Boats.

What is a "submarine base"? Well, a submarine base is, in a word, a supply and repair station for undersea boats. Craft of this kind are very elaborate and exceedingly delicate pieces of mechanism; they are liable to need tinkering at frequent intervals.

Hence there must be a machine shop on shore at the service of the boats when at intervals they return from their cruises. There must also be a storehouse containing all kinds of supplies and spare parts. In fact, there must be tanks of fuel oil.

Usually there is attached to the base a "mother ship"—a good sized steamer, with machinery aboard for making emergency repairs. The steamer also carries dynamo, which may be used for charging the batteries of the boats—though at sea the charging is accomplished by the all engines that propel the submarine when on the surface.

When it is not practicable to establish such a shore station, the "mother ship" may be utilized temporarily as a floating base.

Curious Land, Curious People. Near Cape Horn, in the islands of Tierra del Fuego, live the most curious people in all South America. It rains or snows or sleets nearly every day, and yet they look on their country as the finest in the world. They wear hardly any clothing and seem not to feel cold. Because he saw fires on the shore the explorer Magellan, the first European that rounded the Horn, called the island "the land of fire," which is almost the worst name he could have chosen. Their huts are made of bent boughs and covered with grass. They give only the poorest shelter. The folk are vain, too, wearing necklaces of the teeth of fishes or seals and painting patterns on their bodies. Among them some colors have a novel meaning. White is the sign of war and red of peace. They are great mimics and will imitate voice and gesture perfectly.

Handicapped by His Name. The handicap of a poet's name was illustrated in the case of Mr. William Wordsworth, who was the eldest surviving grandson of the poet. Mr. Wordsworth was a great scholar and a poet himself of high distinction. A volume of his sonnets was issued privately some years ago. On account of the similarity of his name with that of his grandfather, he always refused to publish any of his poetical writings, though pressed to do so by the people of such high authority as Matthew Arnold, who described one of his sonnets as "the finest in the English language."

Odd Geographical Division. The range of the Blue Ridge mountains in Pennsylvania is divided by a river every twenty-seven miles, as follows: From the Susquehanna to the Swatara, twenty-seven miles; from the Swatara to the Schuylkill, twenty-seven miles; from the Schuylkill to the Lehigh, twenty-seven miles; from the Lehigh to the Delaware, twenty-seven miles. At the next twenty-seven miles is a hollow of New Jersey, in which nestles a lake known as Culver's pond.

Right Thinking. The quality of your friends is the quality of your thoughts. Think the thoughts of a thief and thieves will be your companions. Think clean, helpful, creative thoughts and surely your associates will be clean, helpful and creative. You attract to you what belongs to you.

Changed Ideas. "Mrs. Smartly used to boast that she never let her mind run upon little things."
 "Well, does she?"
 "I should say so! She can't talk of anything but her baby."

Circumstantial Evidence. "What makes you think all women hate each other?"
 "Because a woman so seldom brings up a son fit to be another woman's husband."

To make knowledge valuable you must have the cheerfulness of wisdom.— Emerson.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

SHATTERED ROMANCE.

BELIEVE me, gentle Annie,
 If I had but the price
 And you, indeed, were willing
 'T would be a case of split;
 But, fondness on the needful
 That I am more than shy,
 I fear that I can only
 Admire you, dear, and sigh.

In days that are departed
 When romance was in style
 A man and maid were wedded
 Though fortune did not smile.
 They lived on love in summer,
 When autumn turned the page
 They gathered in some acorn,
 And let the winter rage.

But now we have to figure
 On rent and light and heat,
 On confabs with the grocer
 About the things to eat.
 The landlord leaves no turning
 Before he drops a cake
 That promptly every morning
 Full payment we must make.

And so, my dearest Annie,
 Unless they raise my pay,
 I haven't nerve to ask you
 To name the happy day.
 You have to keep on doing
 The very best you can
 There at the ribbon counter
 Or hunt another man.

Considerate.

The Chicago girl was going to New England on her first visit. She had never been there before and was anticipating a great time.

The friend to whom she had promised to be a sister after allowing him to spend all of his savings on theater tickets was offering her disinterested advice.

"There is only one request I have to make of you. I know those people, and I know their intentions are all right. Please when you are away don't step on Rhode Island."

Presto!

"I would do anything to give children a jolly time."
 "Would you?"
 "Yes."
 "Those children over there are having the time of their lives."
 "I was just noticing. What are they playing?"
 "Football with your new silk hat."

And Dream Again.

"I made a fortune last night."
 "Congratulations. What are you going to do now?"
 "Try to get the same combination on my dinner tonight."

Just Because He Could Not Swim.

I went one night to a bathing beach. When a maiden passing fair whom I fondly hoped that night to teach, To love me then and there.

But alas for me and my fond hopes high: Of a sweetheart dear and true! She was sweet, petite, but how should I Her cruel scheme see through?

When I hinted to her of the love I gave She laughed and ducked me under the blooming wave. And swiftly swam away.

Ambiguous.

"I feel that I must have a living."
 "For whom?"
 "For myself."
 "Why, is it necessary?"

Of Course.

"None of your business."
 "I wondered why it is so attractive."

Distressing Kind.

"He has a very hard cough."
 "I hadn't noticed it."
 "Ever try to make him cough up?"

Solved.

The secret of true happiness is "in a lady fair, sufficient with your share of health, Enough and some to spare, A job that doesn't often jar. And there you are!"

Helped the Sight.

"Yes; I seen a flock of flying machines once."
 "Whereabouts?"
 "Down in Mexico."
 "I can hardly believe it."
 "Ever drink any of the liquor they sell down there?"

PERT PARAGRAPHS.
 Some people are so afflicted with presence of mind that their friends are really happiest when they are absent.
 The sanest thing to do sometimes looks crazy.
 A married man always says he is glad of it, and you can't prove he isn't.
 There is a heap of difference between running chances and catching them.
 No doubt the heated tent is harder to bear today than next winter is.
 Of course women dress to please the men, and they aren't to blame if men are so contrary as not to be pleased either.
 If your favorite doesn't win cheer up and change favorites. This, of course, will not get you your money back, but it will give you heart to put some more in tomorrow.

CARE OF THE HOME GARDEN.

How to Get Good Results With Either Flowers or Vegetables.

Never permit the surface of the soil in the garden to form a crust. Constant stirring with hand tools or a wheel cultivator should be practiced between the rows and about the plants. This permits air to penetrate the soil, where it facilitates chemical action and bacterial activity, destroys weeds which would utilize large amounts of plant food that the large amounts of plant food that the cultivated plants require, and finally it conserves the moisture supply. The hoe and the rake are most generally used for this purpose. This advice applies with equal force to both the flower and vegetable gardens.

Where plants are grown closely in the rows it will be necessary to weed between the plants by hand. Small implements are made for this purpose and are sold at a trifling price.

Cultivating should be done after every rain, but not when the water has drained off and the soil is in workable condition. Working in muddy soil will cause it to form a cement-like mass, in which plant food will be securely locked, and the plants will suffer because it is not released for their support.

As soon as the excess moisture has run off or soaked in or partially evaporated, cultivation should be given to prevent the crust which otherwise will form. A crust formed on the surface of the soil restricts the plants, causes excess evaporation and the loss of moisture required by the plants and prevents access of air.

During dry spells, if the plants give evidence of suffering for the lack of moisture, water should, if possible, be supplied artificially. The usual method in small gardens is sprinkling with a hose. Late in the afternoon is the best time to sprinkle, when a thorough wetting should be given. Small furrows can be opened between the rows of plants and water turned into these ditches from the hose. After the water has soaked in draw the earth back in place.

THE SOUL OF AMERICA.

Hugo Munsterberg's Own Story of His First Glimpse of It.

In the Century is published the one completed chapter in the unfinished autobiography of Hugo Munsterberg. The first delighted impressions of the young German professor are of especial interest since in the twenty-five years following he strove to interpret Germany to America, America to Germany.

"Remember as it were yesterday our first Cambridge party. At the threshold of the new academic year Professor Norton and his family had invited some scores of friends to greet the new professors. It had been decided to us as the chief festival event of the Cambridge season. The quins, dignified home on the hill was dimly illumined by the mellow light of a few shaded lamps. There was some coffee and some lemonade, a few tiny brown bread sandwiches and, I think, some ice cream."

"I had not dined at home that night in the expectation of the glorious feast, with an abundance of courses and wines as at such evening parties in Germany, and yet when we drove home from Shady Hill my wife and I felt a joy and satisfaction such as few parties had ever given us before. We felt as if we had entered a truly spiritual community where the demand for high thinking and plain living was the life instinct."

"Where was that shallow and gaudy America, that vulgar and trivial America, that corrupt and self-seeking America, that noisy and sensational America, of which all Europe was talking? Had no one ever discovered the true soul of the American people?"
