THOUGHT HE HAD

HEARTY TROUBLE

Hartland Man Says He Was Nearly Down and Out When He Took Taking Tanks

"It's all due to Tanks that I am able to be on the job today, for I was just about down and out when I began taking it," said Harold Blawie, a tradesman on the Canadian National Railway, residing at 230 Donald St., Winnipeg, Man.

"On returning from France, after three years service over there, I was so run down and weak I could hardly work. My appetite was gone and my stomach in such a bad condition that what little I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good. After eating I would bleed terribly and my heart would beat like a hammer against my chest. This palpitation was so bad at times I began to think I had something serious the matter with my heart. My kidneys had also bothered me for several years and there was a severe pain in the small of my back."

"My sleep at night did me little good, for I would wake up at all hours, and then get up feeling as tired as if I hadn't gone to bed at all. In fact I felt miserable all the time. One day I happened to hear a man telling how much Tanks helped him, so I began taking it and the results have been nothing less than remarkable. To put it all in a nut-shell, I am now as strong and well as I ever was in my life and I consider Tanks well worth recommending to everybody."

Tanks is sold in Hartland by Estey & Curtis Co., Ltd. and by leading druggists everywhere.

PRODUCE PRICES

The potato market has shown increased strength in the past week, stimulated by a favorable government report. The price offered today is $1.75 and farmers should sell some of their holdings at this price if they would get higher prices for what they have left.

Other produce prices are practically unchanged.

At the United Baptist parsonage yesterday afternoon Rev. E. A. Triles performed the ceremony which united Murray A. Smith and Miss Myrtle G. Gibson of Florenceville in the holy bonds of matrimony.

Kazubazua--The Happy Hunting Ground

Kazubazua! What is it? Where is it? Does it exist outside the comic papers? Thus the ignorant and untravelled.

How many Canadians know that Kazubazua is situated in one of the most beautiful sections of the Gatineau district, that the word, far from being one with humorous intent, is of Indian origin, meaning "hidden river," which is descriptively accurate of the Gatineau at this point? Very few, it is to be feared. It takes the sportsman to prick up his ears at the mention of the name. For he will probably know that near Kazubazua lies one of the finest trout streams in the province, and that it forms the base of many famous hunting expeditions.

Notable among these were the two trips which have given the Gatineau a staunch friend in Rex Beach, who claims to have hunted over thousands of miles of country without finding anything that could touch the Kazubazua region.

To Conn Teeple, a resident of Kazubazua and the most renowned of Gatineau guides, a measure of Mr. Beach's enjoyment and success is certainly due.

Teeple, a spare, wiry man who does not look his age—whatever it be—has "called" moose for many a hunter, but save for bears, whose skins adorn his home, he does not care "for killing."

"He's an awful dear man," said a neighbour of his one day, and when pressed to give a reason for Mr. Teeple's expressiveness, he explained:

"He can spot a deer miles away. Seems almost as if he could feel 'em in the air. Where nobody else can bring in game, Conn Teeple can. He knows by looking at a hill whether there's deer on it. Yep, he's an awful dear man, he is!"

Mr. Teeple's tastes are frankly rural. He looks with keen disfavour upon metropolitan inventions, especially the motor car. Walking to him is the natural method of locomotion, though the advantages of a "team" are at times apparent. He walks 25 miles a day with true enjoyment, but one evening after motoring sixteen miles, he returned to his home exhausted. "Tuckered right out," he complained. "It's a cruel strain on a fella's, you know, just setting."

The station at Kazubazua holds its own handsily aloof from the town. Consequently of every description meet the trains and transport travellers over a sort of sandy table-land, profusely covered with blueberries in summer, to the cluster of cottages that form the village. This blueberry patch is about 9 miles in area and its output would practically feed Montreal.

Kazubazua presents a very different appearance to Low for example. The hills seem farther away, the country is wilder, in spite of a relatively larger settlement. Deer are seen close by, bears are not unknown, moose drink at the "crick" and yet telephone bells whine in almost every house and three horses travel will take one to the Capital of the Dominion.

- (1) A typical view of the Gatineau River and Hills.
- (2) Kazubazua has a main street.

There is a main street in Kazubazua, a carding mill, a cement plant and a flour mill. Outside the latter stand the old grinding stones that were used in past years, and on the main road there is an earthen oven, upon which one might look as the grandiose of our Community Kitchen. It has been extensively used within recent times.

Kazubazua will not attract the commonplace, the type of vacationist to whom six wardrobe trunks and ten bathboxes are a necessity. There isn't a moving picture palace in the place, nor a Chinese restaurant, nor an apartment house!

There are two stores, however, and gold has been found in the district. This is true because at one of the stores there are postcards for sale showing a robust looking gentleman leaning on a pick-axe and shadowed by a huge mound, which is supposed to represent pay dirt, probably, but which sceptical non-investors regard merely as a futile attempt to alter the position of the Gatineau hills.

There is a house at Kazubazua. Its functions are not confined to those generally associated with that relatively foreign. On summer days it will draw up nearly at the hotel, the coach-like driver will jump nimbly from his box and assist a passenger to alight. Then, in a hearty tone quite at variance with that he is wont to use, he will explain for the benefit of the gallery, "Won't no more in the right over to the station, so I bought this fella along with me. One fella please!"

Where is Kazubazua? What is it? Ask any of the men who from now until the close of the hunting season may be seen driving their motor along the main road and into the hills. Observe the sportsman's rubber cup, the tanned hide, the hunting equipment, listen for the intermittent bark of a gun in the distance! Or, if an answer is not forthcoming from these signs, sit at some beautiful table a little later in the year, feast the hotel guests upon a succulent steak of venison or moose and ask, "Where is Kazubazua? Your hunters here will tell you!"—Midge Mathews.
