PLANTED PICKEREL.

One Million Fry Just Placed In the Bay.

Yesterday Fishery Overseer Kerr received one million pickerel fry from Mr. W. H. Parker, of the Sarnia fish hatchery, and planted them in the bay. According to the fish history of Burlington .Bay in years gone by, pickerel were plentiful at one time, and especially on the north shore, and experts claim by judicious planting there of pickerel fry in a few years these yellow beauties will again be plentiful at the piers. The pickerel is a clean water fish, and wherever sheets of water such as Burlington Bay exist and are kept as Burlington Bay exist and are kept as clear of sewerage as the bay is at present, it should flourish. Some say those pickerel fry are food for carp, which is erroneous. Carp are a mud fish and feed on wild celery and wild rice and fish spawn, roots of rushes, etc. They go along like pigs rooting up the bottom. If the bay water was not suitable to them they would work their way out of the canal into Lake Ontario, which is not the case with those that were put in the bay last year, and the year before. Pickerel were caught this week near the Desjarding Canal, about six inches lone.
