Bugs With X-Ray Eyes.

A German scientist has discovered that many insects, such as moths and butterflies, have X-ray sight. This ments that the eyes of these insects can see with something similar to X-rays objects invisible to human eyes unless aided by a fluoroscope. If ordinary sunlight has enough of the X-rays in it for the butterflies to see clearly, the world must be a strange sight to them. This scientist believes that they can see through the clothes and flesh of human beings and behold us walking about in our skeletons clad in a translucent covering of flesh.

Bruce's Mother.

The inspector was examining Standard I, and all the class had been specially told beforehand by their master. "Don't answer unless you are almost certain your answer is correct."

History was the subject.
 "Now, tell me," said the inspector, "who was the mother of our great Scottish hero, Robert Bruce?"

He pointed to the ton boy, then round tives.

"These cars are always cold," growled the shivering patron. "My dear sir," interposed a meek passenger, "your statement is two sweeping. When I traveled in these cars last summer they were not cold at all."

An Awful Jolt.

It was 11 p. m. and the conversation had begun to lag. Finally the spirit moved young Staylate and he said:

"Those Kentucky night riders are a bad lot, aren't they?"

"Oh, I don't know," rejoined Miss Weariun, 'as she tried in vain to strangle a yawn, "they might be worse."

"Why, how could they?" he asked, "They might be night sitters," she replied, An Awful Jolt.
