Gautemala.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swash."

Gautemala is not as important in the newspapers as Newport or the Federal League. Yet if Gautemala were to turn entirely over as it has vainly attempted to do several times during its volcanic and earthquake career, coffee would rise largely in price and thousands of Italians would have to buy street organs for want of bananas to sell.

For this latter reason we should regard Gautemala as a blessing and treat it with consideration.

At one time Gautemala also supplied most of the red coloring matter for the world, it being infested with a small red bug called cochineal, which when boiled and used as a dye, made beautiful red cloth. However, science has substituted chemical dyes and the cochineal bug now wanders unharmed through Gautemala and can only end its life by falling into the coffee.

Gautemala is situated in the center of South American hostilities and has been jostling Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador for elbow room for almost a century. It is as large as the state of New York and contains over 2,000,000 people, a few of whom can read. Gautemala has no divorce question, this being avoided by cutting out marriage to a very great extent.

Most Gautemalans are Indians, many of whom work on the large German plantations and are perfectly free except that they cannot leave until they pay their debts and they cannot pay their debts without leaving. Gautemala has a beautiful constitution, modelled on our own, but the nation is like a young lady with a complicated automobile. It doesn't know how to work the thing. Gautemala has had almost as many presidents as Mexico and they have given as little satisfaction. It is the trouble maker of Central America and more than once the United States has had to rush down there in a gun boat and talk things over while holding two or more warring republics firmly by the ear.

Gautemala is a hot, moist land, profusely decorated with volcanoes and 13,000-foot mountains in its middle and with swamps filled with compressed malaria along the seashore. It has the most beautiful birds in the world and also the most ornamental postage stamps. There was once a highly civilized Indian government in Gautemala, with great buildings and a literature. The country is now slowly improving and may some day get back to where it was 500 years ago.

Fads and Fashions.

The more draped a dress the simpler should be the decoration of neck and sleeves.

Buttons of Russian malachite look extremely well on dark or light costumes.

Coral and lapis buttons or beads are charming, especially combined with feathers.

Most of the new fashions are very easy for home dressmakers to carry out, because fit seems to be the last thing thought about.

Collars which sit around the neck of their own free will are features of the latest costumes.

Some skirts are gathered to the knees, falling from there to the foot, like a wide flounce.

When sleeves are long they are moulded to the arm.

Straw belts are one of the novelties of the spring season.

Sashes serve to modernize an ancient dress.

To go with the new spring dresses are large shady hats, plateau shaped. Hat brims of two tones of pleated tulle are very charming.

The Watten-shaped hats have rich pompadour ribbons for trimming.

The best hat to choose for a tailor-made suit is the high shape of fine black straw, with a tall ostrich quill.

Tiny sailor hats with rows of wings poised around the crowns are among the newest.

Pique guimpes and collars are enjoying great popularity.

Boleros are so varied a chapter might be written about them.

The newest and prettiest red is called beetroot.

Plain linene coats and skirts are immensely improved by rich girdles of pompadour ribbon.

Panner gowns are seen made altogether of Roman striped silk.

With the cape style, which many jackets affect, the Italian note prevails over the Oriental.

The absolutely plain robes, beltless, like Egyptian tunics, are very chic.

The trousered evening dress of chiffon is not half as bizarre as it sounds, but very few women can wear it successfully.

Among the new nightgowns are dotted swisses, made Empire style.

Pleated ruffles, edged with rose or blue linen, are seen on the new lingerie.
