

In Passing.

There is no disguising the fact that we are faced with another winter of unemployment. Already hundreds of men who earned very little during the past few months are in very distressed circumstances, whilst their families are the principal sufferers from their ill luck and misfortune.

During the months of what was supposed to be summer such circumstances were not so apparent. No serious but now that the adverse weather conditions cause increased expenses a great deal heavier and the winter months much greater and the requirement of all is work, but honest labour; not charity but the chance to earn a living by the energy of body and brain; work that will when completed be an advantage to the state as well as to those employed.

The aim should be to provide work of to go around and not to crowd through one person and for this purpose strong measures should be carried upon large corporations to please a portion of their reserves and put in hand possible schemes of reconstruction.

If half the money spent on dole and misplaced charity had been used to finance labour, providing enterprises we should have now have avoided the worst evils of unemployment. In writing these notes it must be remembered we are not confining ourselves solely to condition as we see them in the city but have in mind the true state of affairs in the outlying districts which will feel the pinch subsequent upon no fish, poor prices and unemployment far worse than it is manifested itself in St. John's.

In some sections of Conception Bay and Northern districts, the coming winter is dreaded as it never was before. Hundreds yes, thousands are in a desperate plight wondering what the near future has in store for them and their families.

In the city the laborer and mechanic is distracted by the thought of an approaching hungry and homeless winter, and their only hope is that the government will take proper steps to allow them to engage in profitable work which is not so easily procurable during the mid-winter months.

With this purpose in view, we refer to the railway and dock works, the paying of regarding several of the principal streets in the city. All possible assistance should be given to the new building service in order that the money be encouraged to give out a wage of the work which is necessary and which otherwise will not be available till next spring or summer.

In dealing with the unemployment problem committed under the same old fall and winter. One Road-department is sufficient and some of the other contracts are more than sufficient.

To tackle the problem seriously and conscientiously a competent committee or commission independent of all political parties, or of any one party, should be appointed to take charge of the work under the supervision of a competent head. This supervisor and committee would be directly responsible for the failure or success of their undertakings to the Government and would be free to employ as they saw fit.

To ensure a speedy and efficient supervision of same a report of each week's progress should be published every Monday in the daily newspapers so that the public would be informed and last but not least satisfied with the results of the work. It is hoped that the results of the work in 1922 and 1923 would be the result of an honest endeavour to provide fire, clothing or food for those who are depending upon the results of their daily labour.

We must profit by the experience of the past. We must have immediate action if we are to expect satisfactory results.

Tourists Spend Lots in Quebec.

Quebec, Sept. 10.—A conservative estimate of the amount of money spent in this city by tourists, just made by the Quebec Automobile Club, reaches $175,000. From the beginning of May until the first of September 15,000 tourists had called for information at the offices of the club. Taking an average of four people to each car, that means that at least 40,000 people had come to the city by automobile. On a number there were three thousand paying parties of 15,000 people.

WHITE-BROWN.

The marriage of Mr. Bertram Brown and Miss Nellie White, daughter of the late John White (Portmaster at Twillingate) took place, at St. Thomas's Church, Tuesday, in the presence of a large circle of friends. The ceremony was performed by the Rector, Rev. E. C. Earp. The bride, who was attended by Miss Miss Brown, the daughter of Mr. John Brown, port pilot, looked charming in a tailored costume of navy blue, with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid was also attired in a blue costume with hat to match. Mr. Alfred Brown, father of the groom, acted as father of the bride. Mr. Wilfred Brown was best man. Following the ceremony the wedding party took a motor drive countrywards, returning to the home of the groom, Belvedere Street, where a reception was held, and at which the health of the newly wedded couple was duly honored. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will make their future home at Quill West Road. To the happy couple the Telegram extends felicitations.

Obituary.

MRS. SARAH COFFIN.

The angel of death visited the home of Mr. Henry Coffin at midnight Tuesday and claimed for its own a most devoted wife and mother. Mrs. Coffin had been ill about two weeks of pneumonia, but complications setting in she passed peacefully away at the above hour. To know her was to love her and a visit to her home was to be made heartily welcome. She thus became attached to all with whom she was acquainted and many will mourn her passing. Mrs. Coffin, who was 63 years of age, leaves to mourn their loss and loss, besides her husband, four sons, Charles and Ernest of this city; Donald of Edmonton, Can., and Allan of Detroit, Mich., as well as two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Hilliard and Miss Jennie Coffin, both of this city. To all the above a host of friends send sympathy in their hour of sad bereavement.

Anthracite.

Despite the fact that anthracite coal was controversial as to often occupy much frontpage space in newspapers there is a considerable number of persons who do not know that this fuel is found in a comparatively small part of Pennsylvania. No commercially worth while amount of anthracite is found in any other part of the United States. It is confined to nine counties in an area of about 496 square miles. In the northeastern quarter of the state, five of the nine counties yield more than ninety per cent of the annual production. The coal is found at all depths ranging from outcroppings on the surface to about 1400 feet underground. It is found under cities, rivers and other streams. There is no strictly Bituminous coal is found in central and western Pennsylvania in more than a score of counties. There are more than 300 anthracite collieries, employing approximately 155,000 men and boys. Of these about 40,000 are skilled miners who blast the coal. These men hold certificates obtained after two years' experience in the hard coal mines under the mining laws of the state.

He Didn't Do to.

George was the son of a well-to-do village. He was always getting into trouble, and many a time had the kind-hearted villagers helped him out with gifts of food and money. One day he entered the local grocer's shop and said in plaintive tones: "Oh, Mr. Jinks, I must have a sack of flour. I haven't a penny in the world, and my family are starving. I don't know what will become of them if you won't help me." "All right," said the kindly grocer. "If you need a sack of flour so badly and have no money I'll give you one. But remember, George, there's a circus coming to the village in a day's time. If I give you a sack of flour you're sure you won't sell it and take your family to the circus?" "George's face wore a look of paradise," he said. "I've got the circus money saved up already."
