There is every justification for the resentment voiced by the citizens, and we trust it will have the effect of stimulating the Council to action. There is only one course open to them and that is to issue instructions to the men to return to work immediately, and in the event of refusal, to find others to take their places.

AUCKLAND GEDDES SAYS COL-ONIES AND U.S.A. ARE MAKING EYES AT EACH OTHER.

LONDON, Nov. 11. In a lecture describing the United States as one of the greatest stable empires of the world, Sir Auckland Geddes, former British Ambassador to America, this p.m. told an audience of 3000 at Westminster Hall how profoundly American thought was influencing the United Kingdom, and to an even greater extent the British Dominions. The British Dominions that look out on the Pacific, he said. feel that at Washington there is an instinctive understanding of their difficulties which when they come to London they have to explain laborously in Downing Street. The speaker seemed to surprise some in the audience with the remark that when the Dominions looked to the Mother Country and found no satisfactory understanding, they are apt to look to Washington, and Washington with inviting eyes looks back on them. The far-flung British Empire, Sir Auckland said, has yielded the leadership of the world in many respects to the compact desire of the U.S.A. He cited the Washington Arms ence as an example.

Householders all over the city are complaining of the inconvenience and danger to health resulting from the non-removal of ashes and garbage In some of the streets of the city, particularly where there are no back yards attached to the dwellings, there is a frightful accumulation of filth. at the College Hall

Mrs. L. C. Mews' Recital in the Methodist College Hall last night was probably the first of its kind since the days of Mr. Charles LeSueur. There was a capacity attendance, and a distinct success was achieved.

That Mrs. Mews possessed remarkable elocutionary ability was generally known, due to the unfailing generosity displayed in her ready compliance with requests to aid philanthropic efforts. Last night's programme was on a more ambitious scale, and she proved herself well worthy of the repeated plaudits which followed each selection. The handsome bouquet presented to her formed a small tribute of the gratitude and appreciation of the large audience.

Her rendition of "The Ice Floes," was a dramatic triumph. This stirring story of the Newfoundland sealfishery is from the pen of Professor Edwin J. Pratt, now of Toronto, one of New foundland's most talented and scho larly sons. Mrs. Mews interpreted it with fidelity. It was a triumph of realism, and an exhibition of rare dramatic power.

Other selections were from the works of that gentle and lovable poet, James Whitcomb Riley, and from Edgar A. Guest. There were humorous monologues, and the closing numher comprised two scenes from the life story of the Maid of Orleans, the beginning and the closing hour of her wondrous life.

Mrs. W. J. Browne, who inherits the genius and charm of her mother, who as Miss Mamie Jardine, and later as the wife of the Hon. John Harris, so often delighted St. John's audiences, sang sweetly. Mr. Gordon Christian, L.R.A.M., played selections from Chopin and Moszkowski as only a master of music could. He has long since achieved a reputation as an instrumentalist, and never disappoints his listeners. Last night was an exception. The piano was alive with emotion and radiant with the beauty of expression. A concerto is A minor for the violincello and piano was delightfully interpreted by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mews, and Mr. Fred M. Ruggles, always welcomed on concert platforms, fully maintained his record as a solo-

A pleasing incident occurred at the close. In response to an insistent encore, Mrs. Mews recited "Flanders core, Mrs. Mews recited "Flanders Field," "Lest we forget." No more fitting conclusion to Remembrance Day could have been selected than the immortal words of Colonel John McCrae, and in Mrs. Mews they found a
