NEW GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT IN TORONTO.-We beg to call the attention of merchants in this and the north-west Counties to the advertisement of Messrs. This firm has long carried on business in London, and ow, with a large accumulated capital, and great experience, endeavoring to widen the field of its operations. That it will do so there is little room to doubt. A large and complete stock of all kinds of groceries has been purchased, and the liberality and business tact which have heretofore distinguished the firm will failure was known, it was determined that the loss accruing to the employees by having in their possession any of the uncurrent money should not fall upon them, but be borne by the company. Instructions were sent to the heads of the departments for a statement of the notes paid out during the last month remaining with the employees, in order to replace them by others. This action commends itself to the good opinion of all.

How. Mr. Howe in Montreal.—Hon, Joseph Howe spoke at the Concert of the Working-men's Society, in Montreal on Monday evening. He refrained from touching upon politics, his speech being an eloquent and appropriate plea for the support of a society with so worthy an object as the relief of widows and orphans or working men. Rev. Dr. Irvine atterwards made an eloquent addrees. Mr. Howe subsequently went to the concert of the St. Patrick's Society, and made an ingraying representing the open.

The case arose out of a scurrilous report which appeared in the Advertiser of that day, of an assault in which Mr. Oakes was plaintiff and his wife defendant. The defendant in this case went to the office and asked Canham to apologise for the report, which he having failed to do, Oakes struck him in the face, blackening his eye. Defendant was fined $2 and costs. Canham asked the Police Magistrate to blind every contract of the cost of the contract of the cost of th

THE ARTS EXHIBITION.

Magnificent Display in the Drill Shed,

The Arts' Exhibition opened in the Drill Shed last (Tuesday) evening. Great exertions had been made by the Committee during the few days previous, and when the doors were opened to the public, the array of pictures was grand and imposing. It was found impossible to have each class in a particular place, for as the Drill Shed was not designed for a picture gallery, each had to be hung in the spot which its dimensions suited, without regard to its importance. The Oil Paintings were almost an exception to this rule, as the greater number of them adorned the nort', and of the Shed, a few only being found sent ered among the engravings and crayon drawings. All around the walls, and to a considerable height, the works produced by the artist's and the engraver's skill hung closely, and on two long tables in the centre a large number of pictures were arranged, besides some curiosities of antiquity, which shall afterwards be described.—The attendance in the evening was by no means large, the deficiency being no doubt attributable in a great degree to the inclemency of the weather. The Band as announced, was present, and favoured the assemblage with some very fine music in the course of the evening. The chief contributors to the Exhibition, with a description of some of the pictures sent by them, are as follows:—

Mr. George Smith sends fourteen, chiefly steel engravings. One of these is the "Village Blacksmith," a picture not rare, but yet costly; four are illustrative of interesting scenes in the life of the Saviour during his sojourn upon earth; one engraving represents Shakspeare and his friends in conviviality, and another is a life-like portrait of the Italian Liberator, Garibaldi, with his red shirt and weather-beaten features, standing by the side of his horse with the bridle over his arm. All Mr. Smith's engravings are valuable, and their selection evinces the taste of the owner.

Col. Webster sends 23 oil paintings and engravings. Some of the 1-ther are splendid specimens of art, as or instance "Chevy Chase," t

"Chevy Chase," the "death of Lord Manners," a "Flemish Collation," and "Flemish Entertainment," in the last of which the simple habits of this industrious people, and their domestic virtues are strongly pourtrayed. Two others, very old, represent the "Card Players," and "Le Chirurgein de Campagne," and the grimaces made by one old gentleman as he submits his troublesome corn to the operating instruments of Le Chirurgein are amusing in the extreme. Not so old but really beautiful is the engraving, the "Soldier's Dream." The poem connected with it adds to its interest, and as a person looks upon the sleeper he can scarcely avoid sharing in the pleasures of his vision, or in his disappointment when he awoke.

"Our bugles sang truce for the night cloud hat lowered, And the sentinel stars set their watch in the sky And thousands had sunk on the ground over tasted the joys of home and friendship—joys evanescent as his dream, for he awoke and found himself surrounded by the fearful work of carnage. Besides these and other fine engravings, Col.

Webster sends two oil paintings.

Hon. Mr Fergusson Blair contributes 31 oil aintings and engravings. There are 17 of the former, chiefly well-executed portraits of his progenitors. One of them is a charming likeness of a little girl with her arm round a pet lamb; it is a tangible form given to Innocence, devoid of remorse for the past or care for the future. A number of the engravings are from Hogarth, and are very valuable.

Mr Wm. Wood, of Puslinch Plains, has a very fine engraving of Niagara.

Mr James Lindsay sends some excellent engravings, such as the "Picture of Highland Hospitality," the "Successful Deerstalker," and Sambo, grinning his satisfaction with a dead fowl in his loving embrace.

CREDITABLE ACTION.—We learn that the Great Western Railway Company have done a very handsome thing in connection with the failure of the Commercial Bank. They kept their account with that bank, and consequently paid their hands with its notes. As soon as the failure was known, it was determined that the loss accruing to the employees

Mr. John Secon has some good engravings. One which, by the way, appears to be much appreciated, for a number of people have facsimilies, is a splendid representation of the noble instincts of the Newfoundland dog. It is entitled "Saved" and shows a powerful dog emerging from the waves with a chubby little child, which he had rescued, lying motionless on his fore legs. Besides this, and one or the people have others akin to it, Mr. Socon has a lamp, ingeniously contrived so as to represent a moonlight scene.

Mr. G. B. Fraser sends twelve specimens of art. He has one most grotesque engraving, which is designed to be a burlesque on lawyers, and does not, we should say, fail in its design. It is entitled "Laying down the law," and shows one little 'old-fashioned dog, with very long white hair, elevated on a bench and gravely expounding legal questions to innumerable little dogs below. Splendid engravings are "Weighing the fame," the "City of the Great King," and "Christ blessing little children." Mrs. Fraser sends also

Mr. Marshall sends some very fine photographs of individuals and of buildings.

Mr. Raymond has eight pictures. Four of them in beautifully gift oval frames are portraits of the Queen and Prince Albert, and Washington and his wife. He also sends a fine collection of butterflies, and Mrs. Raymond contributes a sample of raised wool work representing a fox, which looks as cunning as foxes usually do, and another in a splendid frame of shell work.

Mr. Shewan has ten engravings, and other specimens of art. One of the engravings, the "Trapper's last shot," is magnificent, and two others quaint and pretty are, "Waiting for the ferry," and "Perthshire Foresters." If these two latter are not twins, they are yet of the same family, for they are both designed as illustrations of deer stalking scenes. He has moreover a very fine stereoscope with a number of views, and Mrs. Shewan contributes a beautiful sample of wool work.

Miss Savage has sent a number of her

Miss Savage has sent a number of her pencil drawings. There is the Conscript with his tattered clothes, and dejected mien leaving his home, perhaps never to return; there are his two sisters with sorrowful faces watching him as he goes; there is the Arabian horse with erect mane, and as Byron says in the "full foam of wrath and dread;" there is a female figure with long, floating hair; there is a deer's head, in form and color most natural; and lastly, but we imagine best, a fat little boy, who has just awakened from sleep, and sits in bed looking around him very good-naturedly with his finger in his mouth.

Mr. Hoeken contributes a good portrait of the Hon. Geo. Brown, and Miss Hosken sends some pretty wool work.

Mr. Thos. Hood sends a number of Indian flints, consisting of arrow-heads and other articles in use before the Red Men had knowledge of iron. He sends also a number of books printed at a very early date.

Miss Palmer sends ten pencil drawings.

Miss Palmer sends ten pencil drawings. Some of these are very fine; the grey-hounds for instance look quite natural.

Mr. Charles Davidson has sent in large contributions. His case of stuffed birds is indeed magnificent, and he has also a large number of water colour drawings, chiefly sea scenes, and one picture in a most curiously and elaborately wrought frame of leather.

Mr. James McKenzie sends engravings chiefly sea scenes, and one picture in a most curiously and elaborately wrought frame of leather.

Mr. James McKenzie sends engravings of Washington, "the hero of Lucknow," of which there are three on exhibition, and a "Storm in harvest," in which the forked lightning is seen parting the clouds, and the harvesters huddled together in the shelter are looking on with terror.

Mr. McLagan sends an oil landscape scene and 5 engravings, two of which are scriptural pictures, "The Temptation in the Wilderness," and the "Queen of the South coming to meet King Solomon.' These are very old pictures one being 261 years old, the other 217. They are from the Old School, Amsterdam. He also sends a Bible, Latin version, printed in German text, 341 years old.

Mr. A. A. Baker sends a large collection of curiosities, consisting of exquisitely wrought designs in Parian and Cararamarble, Thomason's Medallic History of the Bible, two antique candlesticks, a set of very costly ivory chessmen; besides a portrait of his father in oil, which proves that the family features have been inherited by the present Mr. Baker, and two beautiful engravings, one of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, the other is a somewhat ludicrous scene, entitled the "First Trial by Jury."

Mr. James Grow sends the following—

Cathedral, London the other is a some what ludicrous scene, entitled the "First Trial by Jury."

Mr. James Gow sends the following—Two engravings, one the "Death of the Red Deer." by Wilkie; the second "Deerstalking," by Landseer, two photographs from the same artist, and another, "The Cut Finger," by Wilkie. Ten pencillings, by Wandesford, an engraving of Dr. Chalmers, one of the amiable poet Campbell, one of Charles the Pretender, one of James Watt, one of Thomas Carlyle, one of Sir John Moore, one of Kemble as Hamlet, one of "Rebels shooting a prisoner," one of "Rebels befeated," one of Sir David Wilkie, "the Rabtit on the Wall," by Wilkie, "the Ratcatcher," the "Combat," the "Falls of the Clyde," View on the River Stour, the "Coquette," Sir Ralph Abercrombie, [a chalk engraving], and the Duke of Wellington, by Sir Thomas Lawrence. In all Mr. Gow contributed 35 specimens, the chief part of which it will be observed, are engravings, and all are excellent of their kind. Concluded to morrow.

On Thursday night last, six young lads named Scagram, Norris, Blain, Job, Price and Burrett, began to abuse a man named McKay, employed in Brownlow's store, and afterwards pelted him with stones. McKay tackled some of them, when they all got on to him, pulled his hair, beat and kicked him. Having got clear of them he told them to keep off or he would fire at them. They then commenced shouting, "he has a revolver, kill him! kill him!" Scagram then picked up a stone and ran at McKay, who grabbed him with his left hand and shot with his right, making a flesh wound in Scagram's side. He then started to go to his boarding house, the roughs following him and pelting him with stones, one striking him on the head. Bread Riots in England!

Paris, Nov. 5.—The Moniteur this morning, publishes full particulars of the battle in Italy. The scene of the fight was near Tivoli, 3,000 of the insurgents were either killed, wounded or taken prisoners. Garibaldi himself, and his son Menotti, were captured at Terni, and sent to Florence as prisoners of war. 4,000 Garibaldians, while on the march to reinforce the insurgents, were stopped, disarmed and turned back. The greatest agitation prevalls in Italy.

London, Nov. 5, (noon).—Serious bread riots occurred in Exeter yesterday and today. Every meat and bread shop in the city has been sacked. At the time of the receipt of the last despatches incendiary fires were breaking out in different parts of the town. There was much excitement, and the local authorities had petitioned the Government for troops to quell the disorder. Breaduriffs (loss quiet, To-day's Despatches.

Vienna, Nov. 5, evening—The Vienna Debate, a semi-official journal of this city states that Baron Von Beust, in a note, says that the policy of the Emperor Napoleon and that of Francis Joseph, are the same, namely that of peace.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—It is thought here that the recent wifest of Garibaldi cancels the ultimatum of Napoleon.

London, Nov. 5, evening—A despatch from Dublin states that arrests of supposed Fenians still continue. Gen Nagle is to be tried at Silgo.

Correz, Pontifical State, Nov. 3—During the past few days Garibaldi concentrated his forces around Monte Rotundo. Yesterday, Silgnor Corte Crispi and several ardent supporters of his cause, and a deputation from the revolutionary society begged Garibaldi to withdraw, as the Italian troops had crossed the frontier. Garibaldi replied by saying he did not value his life in such a cause, and that a soldier ought not to count the number of his enemies. The deputation then left the camp. This morning Garibaldi, with 3000 men and two guns, moved forward to Tivoli to join Nicotrea, one of his officers, near that place. The Papal Zounwes advancing had taken Tivoli without loss, at the point of the bayonet. Garibaldi's force did not know this, and were marching toward the same point, singing national airs. When they arrived at Metana they were surprised by seven battalions of the Papal army, supported by 12 guns, who attacked them in front and on both flanks. The battle ground was among hills, with a country road on both sense men that had a country for and no both flanks. The battle ground was among hills, with a country for and no hour. In the lottest moment of the engagement Garibaldi had to be dragged away from the battle. His troops suffered much loss and retreated towards Monte Rotundo, pursued by the soldiers of the Pope.
