Professor of Burglary.

New York, June 23.—Inclaire Rader, professor of burglary, made a confession this afternoon to Judge Swan in the back of a pool room on the lower East side. Rader said for some years he has held "daily classes in stealing."

ASKS GAO DISMISSALS

This morning, Harold W. Riley, attorney and Mr. Smith, before calling any evidence for the defence, asked to address the jury on the case of the accused. Mr. Riley said he was "sure" he was when a detective refused to divide a $500 reward received for recovering stolen goods and not being able to tell them, handed them over to the detective to claim the reward.

WANTS TO BE BURIED

Time and again, Judge Swan said, Rader declared with his name and dates, that he paid men in the police department to let him remain free. One time, Rader said, he paid only $100 to avoid arrest when caught stealing a truck load of merchandise worth $10,000. He said only time he was "sure" he was when a detective refused to divide a $500 reward received for recovering stolen goods and not being able to tell them, handed them over to the detective to claim the reward.

VAST ASTOR ESTATE, AMOUNTING TO $28,000,000, DIVIDED AMONG HIS YOUNG WIFE AND THREE CHILDREN

The first official report on the estate of Colonel John Jacob Astor, who died in the Titanic disaster, April 15, 1912, shows that the total estate is $28,000,000. William Vincent Astor, twenty-one years old, elder son of Colonel Astor, will receive the largest share of the estate. His part will amount to $20,000,000. John Jacob Astor, 30, the infant son of Colonel Astor, will receive the benefit of a trust fund of $3,000,000. Mrs. Madeleine Forde Astor, the widow, received an amount taxed at $7,087,500.

PELKEY CASE WILL GO TO THE JURORS TODAY FOR FINAL DECISION

Only Few Witnesses Remain to be Heard for the Defence, Including More Medical Testimony; Charge of Chief Justice Harvey to the Jury will be of Unusual Interest as no Supreme Court Judge Has Ever Been Called on to Decide in Such a Case Before.

TODAY will be the last day of the Pelkey trial. That is, of course, unless the jury takes some inordinate time to decide the case, and unless the addresses of the chief justice and counsel are very long. There remain but three or four witnesses to be called for the defence, and the taking of evidence should be over by 11 o'clock this morning. Thereafter A. L. Smith will address the jury in favor of Pelkey and James Short, K.C., in support of the case of the Crown against the accused. This will follow the charge of His Lordship Chief Justice Harvey to the jury, after which the jury will retire to decide the case. It is likely that the decision will come sometime in the afternoon.

The chief interest will centre around the charge of the Chief Justice to the jurors. The matter which is most to be considered is whether the contest was a prize fight or not, and opinions on that point differ. An attempt was made by the defence on Saturday to have the case withdrawn from the jury on the ground that there had been no evidence produced of a prize fight, but his Lordship said that the decision of that point would have to go to the jury.

Charge Will Be Important. It is an interesting fact that this is the first time that a chief justice has been called on to preside at such a trial, and there are really no precedents of extraordinary value on the legal aspect of the case, so that the chief justice will have to deliver a charge to the jury which will be of unusual interest to all who are present.

In the previous cases of this nature which have been decided in Canada, the decisions have been given by county court judges, police magistrates, or justices of the peace. His Lordship, with his long experience on the bench in Alberta, will bring a grave and weighty charge to the jury, and his finding on the legal points will be full of interest.

So far the witnesses called for the defence have been to the effect that no heavy blows were thrown by Pelkey or McCarty, though the three doctors who have testified as to that point have declared that they do not know to explain the death of McCarty.

REFORM OF AMERICAN METHODS MEANS LOSS OF CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS AMONG BANKERS

London, June 22.—Currency legislation, as proposed in Washington, is the sole topic of discussion among London bankers. According to one leading authority the suggested reform in American banking and currency means the loss of a good deal of fine business in London.

"Take, for instance," he said, "the case of cotton shipments. These are now financed by London. Under a bank system more progressive than that which prevails in the United States, this financing would be done in America. London recognizes the injury a change might inflict on her. She finds, however, ample compensation for this loss in the consideration that she would be relieved of anxiety concerning her gold, for London has reached the point where she is more concerned about her gold than about immediate profits."

It is also urged that currency reform can only strengthen the financial position of the United States. Progressive legislation in this regard is important to the whole world, for the United States is so vast and so rich that it has become an insupportable factor in the money market. That which upsets the United States upsets every other country.

Another firm, the sphere of whose operations is world-wide, asserted that if the "new legislation" contemplated the establishment of one central bank instead of 16, London would have cause to tremble for her financial supremacy. The United States has more gold than any other country. Unfortunately it is scattered and uncentralized. The interest on the outstanding United States financial is proved by recent bank statements. Five New York banks have in the aggregate a reserve greater than that of the Bank of England.

Some are more skeptical as to the power of President Wilson to achieve the legislation he supports, but all regard it as a step in the right direction.

Another Medical Expert. Dr. Duplop was the next called. He also had been at the fight, and had seen no hard blows struck. He said that if a clot of blood was found pressing on the medulla there was no doubt to the cause of death. The cause of the clot would be a flow of blood, and that would come from a rupture of a blood vessel. That, he declared, in answer to Mr. Short, might be caused by violence and a blow from the exterior, but it could also be caused by the rope of the ring which had caused it.

Character of Pelkey. H. S. Clements, M. F., for Comox Atlin, who was called last, gave evidence in favor of Pelkey, saying he had known his people and himself in Bruce County, Ont., for many years. He said Pelkey had always borne an excellent character.
