THE OLDEST MUMMY

Embalmed Three Thousand Years Ago It Still Retains Its Form.

London, April 7.—Prof. Elliot Smith, of the University of Manchester, has recently made a minute examination of the mummy of Ra-Neter in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, England, and finds that it is older by eleven centuries than any other known mummy.

The body of Ra-Neter, a high official in the court of Sesostris, of the fourth dynasty, 2600 B. C., was found by Dr. Finders Petrie, at Medum, in Egypt, in 1892, and presented by him to the museum of the College of Surgeons. Although discovered so long ago, it is only now that its importance has become apparent.

In the course of field work in Egypt, six centuries later than Ra-Neter, have been found, but while time has reduced all of them to a state of powder, Ra-Neter has retained the condition of form given to him by his embalmers over 3,000 years ago. Ra-Neter thus represents a phase in the history of embalming which would be unknown but for his preservation.

At the time of Dr. Finders Petrie's discovery it had generally been supposed that the practice of mummification was as old as the history of Egypt, so that no special significance was attached to the discovery of a mummy of the fourth dynasty. Specimens in museums were often assigned to an early dynasty, but a full investigation of such specimens has convinced Prof. Elliot Smith, who from his long experience in Egypt is well qualified to judge, that all of them are either late mummies, erroneously referred to an early date, or early bodies which had not been embalmed, but only desiccated, and preserved by natural, not artificial, means. The methods used by the embalmers of the fourth dynasty will be fully described by Prof. Elliot Smith in a promised publication. Meantime it may be said that the art had reached a high degree of perfection in that period. The body of Ra-Neter is elaborately made up to simulate the form in life, minute details of his body being reproduced with a fidelity that satisfies the critical eye of the modern anatomist.

WHERE DOES HE BELONG?

Here's a Man Who Does Not Seem To Have a Country.

New York, April 7.—Joseph Uherall, connected with a law firm at No. 33 Broadway, seems to be in a fair way to rival Edward Everett Hale's famous "Man Without a Country." More than that, the only place in which Uherall seems to have any right to reside is on some body of water dividing the United States from Canada. His predicament is the result of having taken a half-hour trip into Canada last October.

Uherall arrived here from Austria on Oct. 29, 1906. The Austro-Hungarian consul has recently alleged that he will not make a citizen of Uherall, having been in prison in Austria. Under the law he could not be deported on this ground after he had been here three years.

But after he had been here two years, eleven months and twenty days, he went to Niagara Falls, crossed into

FOOD COST BOOSTING IN OLD COUNTRY

Bacon, Sugar and Cheese Have All Advanced Within the Last Month.

London, April 7.—The high cost of living is not exclusively an American problem. The cost of food is increasing slowly but surely in England. Bacon within a month has advanced two cents a pound owing to scarcity and speculation. Cheese has gone up two cents a pound, an increase English people will feel keenly, because cheese is used more as a substantial food here than as trimming to a piece of pie.

Sugar, owing to a short supply, is up half a cent a pound, while that English breakfast standby marmalade is up in sympathy with sugar. Soap, too, has increased in price, and is now almost a cent a pound dearer than it was six months ago. The increased cost of soap is due to a shortage of the tallow supply.

Cocoa, however, is eight cents a pound cheaper than a year ago, while sardines are a drug on the market and two cents a pound cheaper than last Lent. Butter is always cheaper in London than New York, owing to the many sources of supply—Denmark, Russia, France and Ireland—in addition to the domestic English supply. Two months ago the best French butter was 30 cents a pound; today it is 25 cents. Flour is cheaper than last year and is down in price two cents on the fourteen-pound bag.

Eggs are bringing less than the New York prices. The best English new-laid eggs are 26 cents a dozen, while eggs guaranteed to have been laid the day before yesterday are 30 cents. Eggs and poultry merchants, however, say that eggs and poultry must go up in price before long owing to the shrinkage of foreign supplies.

The import of eggs during the last year was 15,000 tons below the preceding year. Germany isn't sending large supplies, as heretofore, owing to the fact that German prosperity is enabling the masses of the German people to eat eggs nowadays, whereas in the past they couldn't afford them.

FOUND BUDDHA'S ASHES IN ANCIENT MOUND

Another Set of Relics Found in the Wilds of Hindostan.

London, April 7.—Full accounts of the discovery of relics of Buddha, in the shape of charred bones, near Peshawar were printed not long ago. Only last week the Viceroy of India, Lord Minto, handed over these most sacred relics to the British Museum. At the same time comes word of the discovery of further Buddha relics at Mirpur Khas, about 10 miles east of Bahawalpur. A series of mounds, supposed to be the remains of a buried town, attracted the attention of H. Cousens, superintendent of archaeology, Bombay. He came to the belief that they were the remains of Buddhist monasteries, and that the largest mound would possibly conceal remains of a shrine or stupa erected over some sacred relic.

Excavating this mound, he unearthed two large and well-molded terra cotta images of Buddha. The decorated wall in which they were set measured 20 feet square, and proved to be one side of a square pedestal or base of a stupa, and in the centre of the stupa a well was found about 25 feet deep and 10 feet in diameter. In the brick wall therein was found a chamber fifteen inches square by one foot deep, containing a rough stone casket in two pieces and two little earthen pots choked with sand.

Within the heavy stone casket was a small crystal bottle about three inches high, half encased in silver and thick with verdigris. Within the bottle was an even smaller silver casket wrapped in gold leaf and embedded in dust of a peculiar brown color. It was only a bare inch and a half in length, but within lay yet another cylinder of gold.

A little gold cup lifted out was found to contain only a few specks of dust and a fragment of clear sone. The dark brown dust proved under the microscope to be burnt human ash, and it is conjectured that this is the real relic—that as there was too much to place in the gold cylinder it was packed around it.

Mr. Cousens attributes the date of the stupa tentatively to the fourth century. A. D. Hsiung Tsang, the great Chinese traveler, who visited India when Buddhism was flourishing in the north, records that after the cremation of Gautama the ashes were divided into nine portions, and distributed among sects of disciples in various parts of India.

The discovery of two of these carefully preserved relics of the Lord Buddha within less than twelve months is a remarkable evidence of the value of the work of the archaeological department in India since its enlargement and reconstitution by Lord Curzon.

HARTRIDGE GRILLED

Spent Many Nights in the Tenderloin in Interests of Harry Thaw.

New York, April 7.—Clifford W. Hartridge, the lawyer who is suing Mrs. Mary C. Thaw to recover a balance of $94,000 for professional services, was treated to a severe cross-examination by L. L. Kellogg, counsel for Mrs. Thaw. The inquisition covered not only the expenditures made by Hartridge for the almost nightly entertainment of Harry Thaw's female friends of the Tenderloin prior to and during the first Thaw trial for the murder of Stanford White, but also brought into question the professional conduct of Hartridge.

Mr. Hartridge said he regarded it as professional to visit places of questionable character or no character at all in order to put the denizens of such places who had known Thaw in good humor when it was a question of saving Thaw's life or preventing his confinement in Matteawan.

Alluring Styles in Men's Clothing

Our Men's Clothing is made by expert tailors. This is being recognized by the men of this city and the women, too, for who, besides yourself, takes as much pride in your appearance as your wife, mother or sister. A few years ago everything was left to your retail tailor and yourself; but wholesale tailoring is different. Then you had no alternative but to wear your suit when finished, even if it was not perfect in every detail. Our system is different—no fit, no pay, whether it be ready-to-wear or made to your measure. There are some who cannot be perfectly fitted in ready-made clothes. For such we have over 500 samples of spring suits to select from and make to your measure at no extra cost; overcoats the same. When clothing is finished and sent home, if there is a fault found, return at once and same will be promptly adjusted or money refunded.

INSANE WILL INCREASE

Dismal Future Prophesied in Posthumous Work by Lombroso.

London, April 7.—The Italian review, La Rassegna Contemporanea, publishes a posthumous article by Prof. Lombroso about the increase of insanity and criminality in the future. According to Prof. Lombroso the number of insane persons in the next century will increase fivefold, if not more, as all the causes that provoke the disease, such as the use of alcohol, to overwork, are spreading. Overwork exhausts prematurely, he said, the strength of men who do not seek rest except when they are in that stage of exhaustion which no rest can benefit. Every man over 30 is more or less a victim of nervous exhaustion, and thus it happens that in the insane asylums of the future cases of mental derangement and alcoholic and epileptic dementia will abound. Criminality on the other hand will decrease. There will be fewer crimes committed in the future than at present, and as a rule they will be neither passionate nor atrocious, but more complicated. Criminals will make use of all the technical progress and scientific improvements of the age, and their methods will gradually become more civilized and less brutal. The automobile, the telegraph and the telephone will be made use of by criminals committing and preventing crimes.

Among the clocks of Versailles is one of great interest historically, for it belonged to Marie Antoinette, the hapless consort of Louis XVI. It is a musical clock.
