The Firemen's Representative Quotes London Instance Before Compensation Commission.

[Canadian Press.]
Toronto, Jan. 10.—W. L. Best, representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, was the chief witness before the compensation railway committee to-day. At the outset, Sir William Mere-dith explained that the railways had dith explained that the railways had abandoned many of their objections. The big railways did not wish to be grouped, but they were agreeable to being brought under the parameters. under the operations of the board and paying their indemnity for injury named by the commission. They opposed group-ing and the payment of any initial amount into the general compensation

Mr. Best gave a number of instances, Mr. Best gave a number of instances, and cited the case of Fireman Bennett at London, and A. C. Prenger, who had been killed at Galt, which he said proved that the Canadian Pacific Railway would make no effort to compensate unless compelled to do so, as in these and other cases they had only settled after action had been entered in the courts, and settled for comparatively small amounts. The Canadian Pacific Railway, he charged, had sent out circulars to the men which Mr. Best said were an appeal charged, to the employees to assist the company in its fight against compulsory compen-sation without giving the employees
