SETTLE BOSTON HOTEL AND SHIPPING TO ENGLAND VIA BOSTON AS "AMERICAN FRUIT."

W. H. Chase and Co., recently shipped cargo of 1,000 crates of apples from Port Williams to New York. This prompt settlement was made to the English market for our apples has begun to improve, and henceforth shippers have every reason to believe that the prices for their fruit. The market now is firm and fruit may look out for top prices, which, at this early stage of the season are quite encouraging. What a pity that our fruit growers do not show a little more representative spirit in their make-up and send over their apples themselves to the English market, instead of being sent to the States, and thence across to England, packed in boxes on the English public as the United States Simon Pure article. It is a well known fact that the English market is the largest in the world, and the American speculator has to come here to purchase his fruit. It is a pity that our fruit growers do not show a little more representative spirit in their make-up and send over their apples themselves to the English market, instead of being sent to the States, and thence across to England, packed in boxes on the English public as the United States Simon Pure article.

Some Impressions of Nova Scotia.

BY REV. C. W. KELLEN.

Mr. Evans having just returned from a visit to this delightful country, which has furnished our churches with so many excellent members and our country with some of its most useful brethren, a few words respecting the impressions received there, may not be unacceptable to your readers.

It was an our acquaintance with the writer's first visit to the country. He has always had a high opinion of Nova Scotia, because my father and mother were from there, and I only escaped being a "Blue Nose" by their timely removal to the States.

During my stay, my home was in Nicotax, a farming community charmingly situated in the beautiful Annapolis Valley. Not far from the town of Nicotax, on the banks of the Annapolis River, is the home of the late Mr. Bro. McKee, a man of high standing in the community, and a successful minister at the McKeeville church. He is now in the full enjoyment of his health, and is a most interesting and useful man.

From Annapolis to Windsor, one rides through a fine farming district as well as a delightful favorite of Prospectia. The farms here are generally well cultivated, and the soil is fertile. The people are industrious and enterprising, and the country is well settled.

The soil and climate are well adapted to the raising of grain and potatoes. The chief wealth of the valley is in its orchards, which yield annually thousands of barrels of apples, unexcelled for beauty and richness of flavor. Small fruits, such as strawberries, raspberries, and blueberries, are raised in large quantities. Indeed, it is not to be forgotten that the valley is also a source of supply for the lumber trade.

Let me close this mention of one of the most profitable vocations I ever saw, by saying that during my short stay of two weeks, I did not receive a single unfavorable impression of the place or its inhabitants. It is a grand country, and it is the development of industries which shall give employment to the sturdy sons and daughters. The people are among the kindest, most hospitable, and courteous to be found anywhere. Their easy-going method of living is well calculated to a tired man. The breathing air, pure spring water, and substantial food, together with the quiet beauty of the scenery and its freedom from noise and bustle, make the country a perfect asylum for the weary traveler. My stay here has been an excellent one, and I have been instructed in the lessons of our Australian life.

Baker received on Wednesday last from New York, the first of the new contract for first-class steel box, 230 feet long, to run from New York to Halifax, besides a cargo for a capacity for 200 tons of cargo. She will have accommodations for 175 first-class class passengers, besides 38 stow-away windies, etc. The steamer left ready to go to the Yarmouth-Boston route next spring.—Yarmouth Times.
