EXTRACT FROM A RAILROAD
MAN'S LETTER TO A FRIEND.

TWENTY-ONE years railroad life! How many dangers have preceded me by just one train, or followed me on the next! Oh! how many, many times have I gone out from my home, bearing the kisses of my loved ones on my lips, with the question coming unbidden into my mind, "Shall I return again? or, if returning, will I find those lips sealed with the seal of silence—the seal of death?" If anything will impress a man with the certainty of divine protection, it is to give the best years of his life to train service. But we know—

"He watches while we're sleeping,

His care is over all,

A constant vigil keeping

He marks the sparrow's fall."
